Singapore Rioters Kill 14, Hurt 140

Troops Fire On Mob As Court Rules Child Bride To Go To Holland

By A. L. McINTYRE

SINGAPORE (AP)—Police clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on riot-torn Singapore tonight as the toll from two days of fighting over the fate of a Moslem-reared Dutch girl rose to 14 dead and more than 140 injured.

Soldiers fired at a charging mob in the eastern section of the island tonight and four Chinese were reported killed. Efforts were being made by Moslem leaders, however, to calm their followers.

The British colony's Supreme Court, meanwhile, ruled today that the girl's Roman Catholic

Time Of Bomb Trial Of Ruest Nears Verdict

Twelfth Defence Witness Called

QUEBEC (CP)—A little, middle-aged cripple will hear, perhaps late today, a criminal court jury's decision on his innocence or guilt of murder in the time-bombing of an airliner in which 23 men, women and children were killed.

The little man is 54-year-old Genereux Ruest, on trial since Nov. 27. The Crown says he helped build an alarm clock, batteries and dynamite sticks into a time-bomb that wrecked a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane Sept. 9, 1949.

Today in Quebec criminal court, the 12th and last witness to appear in the defence of the Lower Town watchmaker is due to be heard. Seventy-six witnesses for the Crown told their stories in the trial's first two weeks.

Crown prosecutor Noel Dorion will give the jury a summary of the points brought out by his witnesses.

Irene Simard will plead the case for an acquittal, then judge Fernand Choquette will tell the jury what the law says about how they must appraise the evidence.

Lawyers Are Opposed In Esquimalt Tree Fight

Fight a lawyer with a lawyer seemed to be the philosophy of Esquimalt Council today.

When council received a letter from lawyer E. V. Finland, 948 Esquimalt Road, demanding municipal workmen be sent to cut down a tree just on the edge of his property, council last night referred the letter to its own lawyer, G. H. Sedger.

Mr. Finland claimed municipal workmen, in removing trees just today to his property, had deprived his tree of natural support, and had made his tree a serious source of danger to life and property.

Mr. Finland said the only thing for the council to do would be to send along men to chop his tree down. Stating the letter was written in a friendly way, he did not forget to mention that if councilors did not do as he requested, he might hold them responsible under a section of the Municipal Act when the tree blew over. He said that would happen "in the first winter storm."

Mr. Sedger's recommendation to the council was that it do nothing. He said he had investigated the cutting down of adjacent trees and found no soil had been removed from the vicinity and therefore stated no support had been taken from Mr. Finland's tree.

He said the municipality had no responsibility in the matter whatsoever.

He suggested Mr. Finland, if he feared his tree might fall down, should chop it down himself.

Victoria Youth Charged With Housebreaking

Remanded Without Plea For Week

Vernon Taylor, 22, 3293 Douglas Street, appeared in R.C.M.P. provincial police court here late Monday and was charged with housebreaking at Shawnigan Lake.

Appearing before Magistrate A. I. Thomas, he was remanded without plea for one week. W. H. M. Haldane appeared as counsel for accused.

Court action followed police investigations into a series of summer home robberies in the Shawnigan Lake area last week. Taylor was charged with breaking and entering Harry Dawson's lakeside home.

Victoria police say Taylor may also appear in city police court on a breaking and entering and theft in connection with another case.

R.C.M.P. reported 10 homes had been entered in the Shawnigan Lake area, including one owned by Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew.

Taylor, employed recently by the city welfare department, was arrested Sunday afternoon. Police recovered a mass of goods in his home alleged to have been stolen.

Among the articles in the Taylor residence were firearms similar to those stolen from Wilson and Lenfesty's store on Government Street Saturday night.

Two Killed In Derailment

McADAM, N.B. (CP)—Two train-crew members were killed and three others injured today when a Canadian Pacific double-header freight train plunged off a washed-out stretch of rail 12 miles from here.

Killed were engineer Joseph H. Deiron and fireman C. M. McKay. Injured were D. W. McDermott, engineer of the other locomotive on the 36-car train, fireman Creighton White and George Madire, trainman.

The accident occurred at Lambert Lake, west of this town near the United States border.

Weather Forecast

Intermittent rain Wednesday. Continuing mild. Winds south-east 20. Low tonight 45 and high tomorrow 50.

PAUL HUME, music critic of the Washington Post, was still the centre of a violent controversy today raging over his review of little-known Margaret Truman's singing talents. After President Truman threatened to punch his nose, fellow critics rallied to Hume's defence and a congressman and the president of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Austin, Tex., backed the President.

Dock Drownings Mount To Four

Death toll in two separate but similar traffic accidents at Vancouver Island centres has risen to four.

Three Royal Canadian Navy divers Monday night recovered the bodies of Walter Parkin, 56, and Ole Gronland, 35, both of Campbell River, from the water at the end of the Comox wharf. Parkin was behind the wheel and Gronland in the seat beside him.

They were found in 40 feet of water. Their car crashed into the harbor around 4:30 Sunday morning but high tides prevented recovery at that time.

In charge of the Comox diving operations was Lieut. C. L. Smedley, R.C.N. With him were P.O. James Connolly and L.S. Julian Verschover.

Parkin is survived by his wife and three children at Campbell River; three brothers, Joseph of Victoria, Roy of Courtenay, and Alvin of Campbell River; two sisters, Mrs. J. Herbin of Union Bay, and Mrs. Isabelle Walker of Victoria, and his father, A. A. C. Parkin of Courtenay.

Gronland was single. Bodies of two Victoria men were found in the waters off the end of the Chemainus government wharf Sunday morning after their 1947 Chevrolet coupe crashed through the bumper rail and catapulted into the harbor.

They were Herman Van Dyke Jr., 2553 Penrhyn Street, Cadboro Bay, and Albert Cambridge Curtis, 1600 Oakland Avenue, both aged 22.

Double funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 at McCall Bros. Funeral Parlors for Van Dyke and Curtis. Rev. G. H. Greenhough will officiate. Interment will take place at Royal Oak Burial Park.

U.N. To Stay In Korea Says Attlee

LONDON (Reuter)—Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons today he has "good hopes that the forces of the United Nations will maintain themselves in Korea."

Members of the Commons cheered the announcement, made as a report of the Prime Minister's world crisis talks with President Truman in Washington and Canadian leaders in Ottawa.

Attlee returned by plane from his North American trip today, immediately reported to the King and held a conference with his cabinet.

Outlining to the House the results of the trip, Attlee said: "On Korea and the Far East we have agreed on the immediate course which our representatives at the United Nations should follow."

"We were agreed that aggression must be halted and we were equally certain that every effort should be made to prevent an extension of the conflict."

"Our long-range objective is to reach a stable position in the Far East."

A BOMB TALKS

Attlee said he was fully satisfied with his talks with Truman on the subject of the atom bomb.

"I would ask the House to accept my assurance that there is no difference between us on this vital matter," Attlee said.

On the different attitudes of Britain and the United States to recognition of the Chinese Communist government and Chinese representation in the United Nations, the Prime Minister said: "We did not expect that these differences could be resolved in talks lasting only a few days."

He said the defence of the west remains (the first task of all members of the Atlantic community).

With regard to conduct of the campaign in Korea, Attlee said, "It is clear that the general directives of the United Nations have been followed."

Ilse Koch Carried To Her Trial

AUGSBURG, Germany (AP)—Four policemen carried Ilse Koch into the German court building today to resume her place in the dock in her trial for concentration camp atrocities.

Pale and weak, but apparently restored to calmness after a seeming hysterical breakdown, Mrs. Koch walked waveringly into the courtroom after the policemen had set her down at the entrance.

There was still no ruling by the court whether the "Witch of Buchenwald" was faking the hysteria, as one doctor testified.

The 43-year-old defendant, widow of Buchenwald concentration camp's former commander, burst into a frenzy in her jail cell Sunday night, tearing up the furniture and screaming "I am guilty, I am a sinner."

Man Mangled In Hotel Accident

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A North Vancouver Indian was mangled to death in the machinery of a hotel elevator here early today.

City police identified the victim as A. M. Shaughnessy, about 30, of North Vancouver. Police said Shaughnessy apparently fell asleep in the elevator shaft of the Martin Hotel at 1176 Granville and was caught in the drum and cable when the elevator started to move.

8th Army Withdraws Across 38th Parallel

TOKYO (UP)—Allied armies gave up nearly all of North Korea today in a 50-mile retreat down the west coast to the approaches of Seoul and a drive out of a Chinese death trap to the east coast and an imminent "Dunkirk" evacuation.

The U.S. 8th Army disclosed that it had fallen back across the 38th Parallel, save for one tiny pocket over the border some 30 miles north of Seoul. Fifty-odd miles to the north, Chinese forces massed for an expected drive on Seoul.

On the eastern front, the tank-shielded rearguard of 20,000 Marines and infantrymen reached the Hamhung beachhead after an epic escape from Chinese encirclement. The U.S. 10th Corps announced that naval forces were "ready for any eventuality"—the removal of the 60,000 troops from their dangerous foothold on the coast.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was back in Tokyo today to coordinate plans for carrying on the war in South Korea as signs mounted that Seoul would be defended. He had visited the war fronts Monday.

Growing evidence suggested the possibility that the 10th Corps might be snatched from the inclosing Chinese at Hamhung and thrown into a new line east of Seoul to form with the 8th Army a solid bulwark across the peninsula.

Back from Korea, MacArthur issued a statement that his United Nations forces were undefeated.

Representing the sponsors, India's Sir Benegal N. Rau introduced resolutions in the Assembly's 60-member political committee aimed at a tie-up of the problem.

Rau, who has been seeking peace in Korea through lengthy talks with the Chinese Communists and United Nations leaders, said the resolutions call for:

1. Creation of a three-man commission, headed by Assembly president Nassrollah Entezam of Iran, to attempt to arrange a cease-fire in Korea. Entezam, a supporter of the western democratic viewpoint, would appoint the other two commission members.

2. Election by the General Assembly of seven men to seek a solution of all Far Eastern problems. These would include the question of whether the Communists or Nationalists should represent China in the United Nations, the future of Formosa and the Indo-Chinese War.

The committee and the parent Assembly were expected to adopt the cease-fire resolution without difficulty, since its provisions appeared acceptable to the majority of U.N. members.

SECURITY 'BLACKOUT'

The 8th Army retreat was disclosed after a four-day security blackout. Walker was quoted by President Syngman Rhee of South Korea as saying Seoul would be defended. But such a stand appeared to depend on anchoring the line to the east coast. And only the 10th Corps, ready for evacuation from Hamhung, was available to plug the gap.

Admits Error Caused Troop Train Crash

Operator, 22,
Ignored 'Repeat'

EDMONTON, Alta. (BUP)

A 22-year-old railway operator admitted today the Rocky Mountain troop train collision would not have occurred Nov. 21 with a loss of 21 lives had he abided by the regulations.

The operator, A. J. A. Atherton, son of a railway station agent, testified calmly at a public inquiry of the Board of Transport Commissioners here.

Under questioning, he said he had not listened to another operator repeat an order which had been dispatched by telephone to a westbound troop train and an eastbound Canadian National Railway passenger express which later crashed head-on near Canoe River, B.C., deep in the Rockies.

Atherton admitted the regulations demanded he listen carefully to such repeats.

Stationed at Red Pass Junction, Atherton handed an order to the troop train which omitted three vital words. He admitted if he had listened to the repeat given by the operator at Blue River, B.C., he would have caught the three words, that he would not have passed an incomplete order to the troop train, and that the accident would not have occurred.

The collision claimed the lives of 17 soldiers and the engineer and fireman aboard each locomotive. The soldiers were members of 2nd Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, en route to Fort Lewis, Wash., for United Nations service.

Verdict Near In Ruest Trial

QUEBEC (CP)—A little, middle-aged cripple will hear, perhaps late today, a criminal court jury's decision on his innocence or guilt of murder in the time-bombing of an airliner in which 23 men, women and children were killed.

The little man is 54-year-old Genereux Ruest, on trial since Nov. 27. The Crown says he helped build an alarm clock, batteries and dynamite sticks into a time-bomb that wrecked a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane Sept. 9, 1949.

Today in Quebec criminal court, the 12th and last witness appeared in the defence of the Lower Town watchmaker.

Seventy-six witnesses for the Crown told their stories in the trial's first two weeks.

SECESSION IN SAANICH APPROVED BY B.C. GOVT.

Secession of former Ward Six from Saanich Municipality was approved this afternoon by the B.C. cabinet.

Four orders-in-council were passed authorizing the division of the municipality, ratifying the new boundaries creating the district municipality of Central Saanich, and setting forth regulations dealing with elections.

Granting of the secession petition marks the end of a struggle dating from the incorporation of Saanich in 1906.

The new municipality will have a reeve and four councillors. Nomination day is Jan. 4 with election day Jan. 13. Residents of the new municipality will not be allowed to vote in the Saanich municipal election Saturday.

Special Force Soon To Know Destination

OTTAWA (BUP)—An early decision on whether to send Canada's special army force to Korea or to Europe was predicted by high-level defence spokesmen today.

The decision must be made shortly because the 10,000 men now stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., soon will complete their training and want to get into action, a senior officer said.

"United Nations reverses in Korea do not necessarily lead to the assumption that more forces are needed there," he said. "The unified command believes it can establish a firm line and hold it with the forces that are now there."

A definite decision on the disposition of the special force may be made following this week's meeting of North Atlantic Treaty defence chiefs in London. Canada is represented at the talks by Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the general staff, and a group of advisers.

The special force was bolstered Monday by the formation of two new battalions which will train at Fort Lewis with the three battalions already there. A sixth battalion, the 2nd of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was understood today to be nearing its destination in the Far East and may already be there.

Members of the Commons cheered the announcement. "Atlee returned by plane from his North American trip today, immediately reported to the King and held a conference with his cabinet."

Outlining to the House the results of the trip, Atlee said: "On Korea and the Far East we have agreed on the immediate course which our representatives at the United Nations should follow."

Britain, U.S. Back Korea Peace Plan

Safety Of Soldiers Required

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Britain and the United States today threw their support behind a Middle East-Asian proposal to seek a basis for a Korean cease-fire. The U.S. insisted, however, that other Asian problems cannot be discussed until the Korean fighting ends.

The two big Western powers spoke immediately after India's Sir Benegal N. Rau had laid before the General Assembly's political committee the plan of the Asian and Middle East countries. This plan called both for a special group to seek a basis for a cease-fire and for another group to seek a settlement of all outstanding issues in the East. American delegate Warren R. Austin said he would vote for the cease-fire on the understanding that the U.N. provided for the safety and security of the U.N. forces in Korea and of the Korean people. He did not comment directly upon the plan for general Asian discussions.

CEASE-FIRE PROPOSAL
Kenneth Younger, British Minister of State, also confined his remarks to the cease-fire proposal. He said his government supported it.

At the request of Russian delegate Jacob A. Malik, the debate was recessed until tomorrow morning to give delegations time for consultation with their governments. The chairman, Roberto Urdaneta Arbelaez, said other delegations also had to await instructions.

In presenting the plan for a group of Asian and Middle East countries, Rau said he was convinced from his talks with Chinese Communist Envoy Wu Hsiuchuan that the Peiping government wants peace. He warned, however, that the Chinese people seem to be moving toward a sort of hands-off doctrine for the Far East.

Rau proposed that the Chinese Reds be given a direct vote in settling outstanding Asian problems after the basis for a cease-fire in Korea is worked out.

The Middle East-Asian plan was embodied in two resolutions worked out in a series of closed-door conferences just before the political committee met this morning. Rau asked for top priority consideration of the proposals.

The committee overrode Soviet opposition by a vote of 48 to 5 and decided to begin debate at once on the new proposals.

Rau said the Chinese people had been made unduly suspicious by oracles of the past and they see aggression where none exists.

Rau said Wu had asked him about the future of Formosa. He had replied India would stand by the Cairo and Potsdam declarations. He also said he told Wu that President Truman was on record as saying the U.S. 7th Fleet would be withdrawn when the Korean conflict was over.

Turkey For G.I.'s In Field

TOKYO (UP)—The army Quartermaster Corps announced today that Christmas meals for G.I.'s will include:

GIRL ON 4TH BIRTHDAY LEARNS SOLDIER DADDY GONE TO GOD

LYNN, Mass. (BUP)—A 29-year-old housewife here received a War Department telegram in the midst of a gay birthday party for her four-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Blanche Madsen read it quickly . . . then thrust it away. She went on serving ice cream and cake to little Diane, her other three children and several from next door . . .

She listened quietly to their laughter and thought good times like these recently had been rare for her husband—Marine Staff Sgt. John E. Madsen, fighting in Korea.

When the neighbor's children went home, the woman gathered her tots around her. She said: "Daddy is going to be with God now and we must all pray for him."

During their great fight in breaking out of entrapment in the Chosin Reservoir area of Korea, the U.S. Marines used every available means to move their equipment, as this battlefront picture shows. (More pictures, page 3)—(NEA)

Fierce Mongolian Cavalrymen Spearhead New Communist Drive

TOKYO (Reuter)—Evacuation of the Anglo-American force in the Hungnam beachhead in northeast Korea has begun, unconfirmed frontline reports said today. The reports said the troops had started to board the armadas of United Nations warships standing offshore.

A Chinese force estimated at nearly 100,000 men was believed to be converging on the U.N. defence ring, set up after the 60-mile retreat from the Chosin Reservoir.

TOKYO (AP)—Some 27 Chinese Communist divisions—including 8,000 to 14,000 fierce Mongolian cavalrymen—today pressed menacing feelers toward South Korea after driving the bulk of the United Nations forces from the north.

Shaggy little Mongolian ponies and supply caravans of two-humped camels such as the mediaeval conqueror Genghis Khan used centuries ago, gave bizarre but effective mobility to the vanguard of Red China's 1,000,000-man force as it streamed unopposed over almost all of North Korea.

In the west, the bulk of the Allied Eighth Army had withdrawn to parallel 38, the old boundary between North and South Korea.

In the northeast, most of the United States 10th Corps was huddled on the Hamhung coastal plain. This force was 130 air miles deep in North Korea, but it was surrounded by Communist forces and the road south was blocked. At the nearby port of Hungnam, a U.N. fleet was standing by in readiness to evacuate the encircled corps.

The Hamhung perimeter is not a fighting front, AC correspondent Tom Stone reported. A retreat by land for the 10th Corps would mean a suicidal run through enemy-held territory to reach the south. Stone's dispatch indicated that fighting in the northeast is near an end and evacuation by sea for the cut-off 10th Corps appeared to be the logical move.

U.S. REGIMENT IN NORTH
An American army regiment, the 7th Division's 17th that once stood on the Manchurian border, was somewhere in the frozen wasteland and presumably withdrawing toward Hungnam. Its movements were shrouded for security reasons.

So, too, were the positions of two South Korean divisions, the 3rd and Capital. At full strength they would total about 20,000 men.

They had struck along the northeast coast within 40 miles of Soviet Siberia when masses of Communist Chinese turned the tide and the order was given to withdraw.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the Chinese Reds were advancing slowly. Their troop mass appeared to be turning toward the centre of the peninsula, where there is no Allied line.

Sales Tax Payment To Cities Fixed
The B.C. cabinet this afternoon authorized distribution of an interim payment of $1,000,000 to the municipalities from 1950-51 sales tax proceeds.

This distribution amounts to 50 per cent of the estimated one-third of collections in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1951.

Defence Chiefs Back German Participation
FROM AP, BUP DISPATCHES
LONDON—The chiefs of staff of the 12 North Atlantic Pact nations have agreed on German participation in a Joint Western European army.

The military leaders—including Canada's Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes—agreed German units would serve under an Allied supreme commander.

The group met throughout the day at Lancaster House. Reliable informants said the talks had gone so smoothly that the timetable has been stepped up.

Tomorrow, the officers will confer with North Atlantic Alliance deputies who have been working on a defence plan since July 17.

Problems under consideration included definition of size and scope of the command of North Atlantic Treaty organization armies in Europe, and its link with existing regional defence groups like the five-nation Brussels Alliance.

It is widely expected that the Brussels Treaty defence group will be swallowed up by the New Atlantic Pact force. Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery now is commander-in-chief of the

Paul Hume, music critic of the Washington Post, was still the centre of a violent controversy today raging over his review of the singing talents of President Truman's daughter. After President Truman threatened to punch his nose, fellow critics rallied to Hume's defence and a congressman and the president of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Austin, Tex., backed the President.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

WAGES AND SALARIES

I HAPPEN TO BE one of those people who believe in higher education. But after looking around and making comparisons between the salaries offered for those who have gone through the more advanced educational processes and the wages offered those who haven't, I am beginning to wonder if higher education really pays.

Of course, I know a host of educationists will be horrified by any such suggestion and will immediately come back with the reproach that it does—in the long run. And, equally of course, I know that there is more in the shape of reward for absorbing liberally of the liberal arts than just filthy lucre. At the same time, current living costs make many people—even the highly educated ones—yearn for a little more of that kind of filth.

CIVIL SERVANTS

LET ME ILLUSTRATE the point I am getting at. In the "male help wanted" ads. of this newspaper the other day I noticed one calling for a deputy superintendent of brokers in the Attorney-General's department across the Bay.

The salary offered started at $2,736 per annum for the probationary year; thereafter $3,456, rising to $4,056 per annum, including cost-of-living bonus. A footnote added that probationary salary may be waived in the case of candidates with appropriate experience.

HIGH QUALIFICATIONS

IN RETURN FOR that princely (!) salary schedule, high qualifications are demanded. Candidates must be a "qualified barrister or solicitor in B.C. or chartered accountant or equivalent training, preferably with experience in this field. On top of that he must possess tact, good judgment and ability to deal with the public, says the advt.

You have only to read those essential qualifications to realize the years of expensive education and training needed to fill that important position. Yet in the light of wages paid—and expected—in other fields the salary seems scarcely commensurate with the responsibilities involved.

CIVIC TRENDS

TAKE, FOR INSTANCE, the current wage increases now being sought by employees at the local civic level. As an example, first-class constables now get $229 per month—or $2,748—and are asking for certain increases as well as other privileges. Incidentally, I am not advancing any opinions as to whether they are justified or not, because the whole matter is now under negotiation.

Put I cannot help comparing a policeman's lot—which may not be a happy one—with that of the deputy superintendent of brokers, when it comes to comparative pay and emoluments in the light of the different educational standards required.

SAME EVERYWHERE

THIS DISCREPANCY in what I might call the short-term, as opposed to the long-run monetary value of higher education, is by no means indigenous to British Columbia. Just recently an Ontario university invited applications for positions at the new federal science service laboratories to be erected on the campus.

One job open on the research staff proper stipulated that the applicant must hold his master's degree in chemistry, must, in addition, have put in a certain amount of post-graduate work and, further, have acquired a year or two of actual experience on a job.

SIMILAR SALARIES

IN RETURN FOR the skilled services required of that scientific researcher the authorities offered the minimum salary of $3,180 per annum—not much of an inducement for students at that same university to take up science as a career, by the way.

But side by side with the notice of the aforesaid post was another, calling for applicants for the post of plumbing-heating-maintenance overseer. He, too, was offered a minimum starting salary of $3,180 a year. And the minimum education requirements for that particular post? Eighth grade. Who said higher education pays?

Craigflower Road Rebuilding Plan

Indication that Esquimalt might soon be able to undertake rebuilding of the bad section of Craigflower Road, between the municipal boundary and Tillam, was given by Councillor A. C. Wurtele at Monday night's meeting.

Speaking as chairman of council's public works committee, Councillor Wurtele told of going to see B.C. Works Minister E. C. Carson with regard to the road.

It is understood the council's works committee approached the minister with hope the provincial government might take over this section as an arterial highway and thereby assume full responsibility for its maintenance. This, however, was not done.

Councillor Wurtele reported to council that favorable negotiations were under way between the committee and the provincial works department and that substantial assistance could be expected from the senior government.

MRS. KELSEY TALKS

'Talk About Housework We Won't Talk Long'

This is the third in a series of four articles on Mrs. Amy Kelsey, champion wheat grower who now lives in Victoria.

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

People always want to know what a queen does in the kitchen.

Be she beauty queen, glamour queen or world wheat queen, Mrs. Amy Kelsey is no exception. Well we might as well tell you now. She dislikes housework.

"If we dwell on housework I won't be talking to you long," said she with a gleam in her eye. "The less said about that the better."

"I like the outdoor life, if I didn't have to come in and cook meals . . . that was the biggest bugbear."

"I don't mind housework too much so long as I don't think about it . . . when I start housework I'm cranky."

"Any favorite recipes," she was asked.

"Now, now, none of that. If I had any I'd enter a contest."

NEW INTERESTS, DOCTOR'S ORDERS

And Mrs. Kelsey isn't talking idly when she says that. Her hobbies are many and varied. She has entered more than just wheat contests.

"I raised prize chickens, too, but any money I ever made for hobbies went out in doctor's bills."

"Doctors tell me to get a new interest, a new hobby. In other words if you can't dance on one leg learn to sing and whistle."

A sense of humor undimmed by her year's work or disappointments sprinkles Mrs. Kelsey's conversation. She has known fame and also wound up as the face on the cutting room floor.

This last occurred when she was one of the Canadian women chosen for a National Film Board picture entitled "Cradles and Careers." Most of her footage did not see the light of the movie house.

She laughs when she recalls the times, she has been so eager to pick and repick her wheat kernels that her exhibit for either Chicago or Toronto was almost too late for show.

"One time at Toronto an unknown taxi driver made a mad dash from the railway station to the judges with my wheat exhibit. I would like to have known who he was."

TOO MUCH REGIMENTATION

Mrs. Kelsey's thinks there is far too much regimentation in the world today. She claims people should be free to find their own markets.

Does she read much . . . "Till the cows come home."

"I read anything so long as it's clean and decent . . . none of this sexy stuff."

As far as cooking and the kitchen is concerned . . . she will admit she always made good plain fare . . . "Don't believe everything he lets on," says she nodding affectionately at Mr. Kelsey. "He wants a hot meal once a day and on the dot . . . no fancy cooking, just good, plain meals."

"Why," I taught her how to make bread and butter," interjected Mr. Kelsey.

"I'm not the domestic type," countered Mrs. K. "Though I've been at it since I was 14 I'm still not domesticated."

(To Be Continued).

Can Get Service If They Pay, Saanich Attitude

Seceding Ward 3 Areas Offered Same Terms As Those Of Oak Bay

Saanich Municipal Council Monday endorsed unanimously a motion by Councillor L. H. Passmore that seceding areas of Ward Three and the "panhandle" be offered the same terms as those of Oak Bay, with which the seceding areas wish to amalgamate.

"Ward Three secessionists are pretending that this is a new proposal designed to woo them back to Saanich," Councillor Passmore said. "It is nothing of the kind. It is simply a reiteration of statements that have been made many times before, that Ward Three or any other area can have any services they desire providing they agree to pay for them."

In brief, Councillor Passmore's motion offered reassessment to ensure equality, that revenue from the area be returned in services, that the area assume liability incurred in the purchase and distribution of water, and that various services be provided by local improvement.

'ACT ITS AGE'

"For several years now the householders who live in the profit-producing urban area have had water restrictions applied in the summer months," Councillor Passmore continued, "not because there is a shortage of water in Sooke Lake, but because in the congested urban area we are still trying to supply water through two-inch 30-year-old wrought iron pipe."

This situation exists, he said, because the municipality has been so busy in Ward Three replacing comparatively new pipes, installing pumps, and building reservoirs.

"If Oak Bay declines to accept Ward Three or if the Minister of Municipalities declines to sanction the transfer," he concluded, "I sincerely hope that in the future Ward Three will 'act its age' and attempt to pull its weight in the municipal boat."

Seven Passengers Drown

MINATITLAN, Mexico (AP)—At least seven persons drowned Monday when a small passenger boat capsized in the Coatzaco-cos River, 150 miles southeast of Vera Cruz. Another eight of the 75 passengers aboard were reported missing. Rescue workers got most of the passengers ashore despite the swift current.

U.S. Shooting Stars Drive Off Russ Jets

FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea (UP)—Eight Soviet-built jet fighters attacked four American F-80 Shooting Stars near the Manchurian border today in one of the biggest all-jet air battles of the Korean war.

The Communist MIG-15s broke off the engagement five minutes later and fled across the Yalu River frontier into the safety of Manchuria after one of them was damaged. None of the Shooting Stars was hit.

An air force spokesman said the dogfight occurred over Sinuiju in the northwest corner of Korea. The Soviet-built jets made several passes at the F-80s he said.

First Lt. Evan W. Sosewicans of Towanda, Pa., said he hit one of the attacking MIG-15s and saw sparks fly from its fuselage.

F-84 Thunderjets joined other planes of the 5th Air Force in bombing, rocketing and strafing enemy targets throughout northern Korea. In 335 sorties, the Allied pilots claimed to have killed or wounded 800 Communist troops, attacked 18 towns suspected of harboring the enemy, and destroyed or damaged 70 buildings, 20 vehicles, three bridges and one supply dump.

One F-80 was lost over enemy territory during the day. There was no information on the pilot's fate.

Meantime, Superforts of Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell's Far East Air Force bomber command dropped 168 tons of 500-pound demolition bombs on the Communist supply transportation centers—Sinanju, on the main west coast traffic line, and Sukchon to the south.

KOREANS JUST TOOK UP SPACE 'Buddy System' Fails Under Battle Stress

WITH U.S. EIGHTH ARMY, Korea (AP)—The "buddy system" has been a failure, in the opinion of most front-line commanders in Korea.

This attempt to integrate South Korean soldiers with American front-line outfits was begun in August. It was an emergency military measure.

In those desperate days of defence along the Nakdong River line not enough American soldiers were arriving to replace the men lost in battle. It was decided to fill the gaps in the line with selected South Koreans.

When the mixed Korean and American outfit went into combat, the "buddy system" began to fall apart. Under the stress of battle the differences of language and loyalty between the two nationalities became more vitally important than their desire to understand and work with one another.

The Koreans haven't had time to learn American army technique. An American soldier hated to have his life dependent on whether his Oriental buddy knew enough to give him covering at the right moment.

There were numerous cases of outstanding stubborn and heroic fighting by these Korean volunteers. There were other cases where they broke and ran—and these created bitterness.

"They largely have just taken up space," said one veteran commander who had been among the first to welcome the "buddy system."

The result today is that the "buddy system" has been quietly shelved.

Dock Drownings Mount To Four

Two Killed In Separate Cases Of Cars Plunging Into Water

Death toll in two separate but similar traffic accidents at Vancouver Island centres has risen to four.

Three Royal Canadian Navy divers Monday night recovered the bodies of Walter Parkin, 36, and Ole Gronland, 35, both of Campbell River, from the water at the end of the Comox wharf. Parkin was behind the wheel and Gronland in the seat beside him.

They were found in 40 feet of water. Their car crashed into the harbor around 4.30 Sunday morning but high tides prevented recovery at that time.

In charge of the Comox diving operations was Lieut. C. L. Smedley, R.C.N. With him were P.O. James Connolly and L.S. Julian Verschores.

Parkin is survived by his wife and three children at Campbell River; three brothers, Joseph of Victoria, Roy of Courtenay, and Alvin of Campbell River; two sisters, Mrs. J. Herbin of Union Bay, and Mrs. Isabelle Walker of Victoria, and his father, A. A. C. Parkin of Courtenay.

Gronland was single.

Bodies of two Victoria men were found in the waters off the end of the Chemainus government wharf Sunday morning after their 1947 Chevrolet coupe crashed through the bumper rail and catapulted into the harbor.

They were Herman Van Dyke Jr., 2555 Penrhyn Street, Cadboro Bay, and Albert Cambridge Curtis, 1600 Oakland Avenue, both aged 22.

Double funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 at McCall Bros. Funeral Parlors for Van Dyke and Curtis. Rev. G. H. Greenhough will officiate. Interment will take place at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Victoria Youth Charged With Housebreaking

Vernon Taylor, 22, 3293 Douglas Street, appeared in R.C.M.P. provincial police court here late Monday and was charged with housebreaking at Shawnigan Lake.

Appearing before Magistrate A. I. Thomas, he was remanded without plea for one week. W. H. M. Haldane appeared as counsel for accused.

Court action followed police investigations into a series of summer home robberies in the Shawnigan Lake area last week. Taylor was charged with breaking and entering Harry Dawson's lakeside home.

Victoria police say Taylor may also appear in city police court on a breaking and entering and theft in connection with another case.

R.C.M.P. reported 10 homes had been entered in the Shawnigan area, including one owned by Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew.

Taylor, employed recently by the city welfare department, was arrested Sunday afternoon. Police recovered a mass of goods in his home alleged to have been stolen. Among the articles in the Taylor residence were firearms similar to those stolen from Wilson and Lemfest's store on Government Street Saturday night.

Signed Sealed Delivered

OVER 2600 years ago the Aegeans invented money as an easy means of exchange for goods and services received. In business today, the simple exchange of cash for goods received has become a complex one. When a business changes hands, the parties concerned sign an agreement... the signature of the purchaser being evidence that he will pay... the signature of the seller being evidence that he will deliver the goods.

This is where the service of a Chartered Accountant has a place. He can determine whether a complete audit of the business is necessary or whether a check of the assets at current values is required. He can analyse the sales and earnings and estimate future profits based on past performance. Also, he can reveal the effect taxes will have on the transaction... a point too often overlooked by a prospective purchaser.

These and other factors of a financial nature determine how much should be paid for a business to allow the purchaser a fair return on his money. Whether the business be large or small, by consulting a Chartered Accountant, a sound plan can be worked out covering the purchase, the price and the terms of payment. The final plan should be referred to a lawyer to be put in the form of a legal agreement... signed, sealed and delivered.

Stand Or Fall In Europe

EVEN TOWARD THE END OF 1942, when the Allies had begun to get the measure of the Axis enemies, sharp cleavage of opinion had developed in the United States as to whether the major forces of the neighboring Republic should be concentrated in the Pacific or deployed against Hitler's legions then in possession of the Western European coastline from the North Cape to the Spanish frontier. Both military and political strategists required little or no persuasion to convince them that the liberation at the earliest possible moment of those Atlantic communities occupied by Nazi soldiery was of paramount importance. Russia was demanding a second front; preparations for such a move in itself produced a significant psychological effect on the people of the Soviet Union. It began on June 6, 1944, and victory came less than a year later.

We mention this now because Dr. Nathaniel Pfeffer, Professor of International Relations at Columbia University, who is also an expert on Far Eastern problems, has just published a searching article in which he exhorts the policy makers in the United States to keep ever before them the basic fact that in the long-run "Europe is our first front."

He freely admits that to lose Asia would be serious; but to lose Europe "could prove fatal." His assessment of the present situation can be summarized briefly: In his opinion the loss of Asia would be unfortunate in the economic sense, but in future potentiality rather than in present reality—a relative and not an absolute fact.

On the other hand, Europe, under Communist domination would bring incalculable economic consequences, for a large and important segment of America's export trade would be cut off. For example, such durable goods as automobiles, farm machinery, business machines, machine tools, agricultural commodities in wide variety would become a glut on the domestic market. Furthermore, the billions lent to European countries during and after the Second World War would have to be written off. The blow, indeed, would be a crippling one. Dr. Pfeffer sums up the strategic consequences this way:

Russia would have the whole world, except America, which would stand as an island in a vast militarist-Communist sea. Asia could go Communist and Europe remain unaffected, but if Europe became Communist, Asia would fall into line almost automatically. It would see the handwriting on the wall. Certainly, no part of it would have enough confidence in America to risk aligning itself with the United States.

Under such conditions, of course, the whole of this continent would be under direct threat. For Dr. Pfeffer pointedly reminds us that Russia would have at her disposal not only European manpower, but Europe's industrial establishment and its advanced technological development, both in plant and personnel. "This last might be the greatest lift to Russia from European conquest," he points out, while the Soviet Union "would have convenient jumping-off places for attack on America."

None who has followed Stalin's imitation of Hitler's technique will gain say Dr. Pfeffer's analysis. For it is as plain as a pikestaff that the United States cannot go fully to the defence of both continents. Hence it is necessary—as it was in 1942—to make a choice as to priority in order to be successful in both in the end. Now, as before, therefore, the claim of Europe is greater than that of Asia; and "we shall stand or fall in Europe."

That Dark Lives May Be Brighter

PROPERTY OWNERS OF VICTORIA will decide at the polling station on Thursday whether or not they will grant to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind tax exemption on quarters planned on the city-donated lot on Blanshard Street, opposite the Canadian Legion Hall. The question is of vital concern to the Institute, and through it, to the blind population of this community. Passage of the plebiscite granting that concession would permit the agency which does so much for the sightless to avoid the financial drains on its resources that taxes would make.

The decision has been placed squarely before the property owners in the only manner in which it can be submitted. Certain points of debate could be raised relative to the concession, but one fact cannot be changed. It is that the agency which tries to bring a little brightness into lives that are physically dark is asking Victorians for help in that task. Knowing that, property owners will need little heart-searching to determine the course they should take. By voting "yes" they offer a small prayer of thankfulness for the gift of sight they enjoy.

Harry—And Margaret

THERE IS A CONSIDERABLE TARA- diddle in Washington today over President Truman's vitriolic attack on music critic Paul Hume, who said that Margaret's singing was flat. In dock-walloper's language, H. S. T. threatened to flatten Hume's nose. In a sideswipe at another Truman critic (non-musical), the president added: "Westbrook Pegler, a gutter-snipe, is a gentleman compared to you."

This amazing document has so excited the capitol that the value of the letter is currently estimated at $30,000. Walter Winchell has already appealed to

Hume to turn it over for the benefit of the Damon Runyon cancer fund. Almost unnoticed in the hubbub following this lighthearted blast was the comment of Margaret herself. Said she: "Mr. Hume is a fine critic and, like all critics, has a perfect right to say whatever he thinks."

Which confirms what we have suspected all along: that Margaret has a finer sense of diplomacy—and more horse-sense—than the irate man in the White House. He should give serious consideration to appointing her ambassador to Mezzosylvania.

Says Only Military Necessity Should Govern Use Of A-Bomb

By BRUCE BLOSSAT, from New York

A PROMINENT church organization declares that maybe it would be all right for us to use the atomic bomb if it is dropped on our cities first. This statement unquestionably represents a decision taken after prolonged soul-searching by leading churchmen. But unfortunately it falls into a standard misconception that the atomic bomb involves a great moral issue.

It clearly does not. Except for the killing effects of radiation, the A-bomb differs from other bombs chiefly in the magnitude of its impact. The ways in which it kills are the ways all bombs kill. It simply strikes down many more people at one time.

It is no more immoral to use an A-bomb than to use a pistol if the weapon is employed in pursuit of aggressive aims. That's the point: the real moral offense is aggression, for it is this crime which lets down the bars to violence.

Once we are in a war, it must be left to the discretion of our high command what weapons to use and when. That must be so whether we are fighting the Russians or the Chinese or anybody. There can be no rule that we are free to use the A-bomb against one enemy but not against another. Nor should we have to get anyone's permission to use it. And we certainly should not have to wait until the enemy employs it, for by that time it might well be too late for us to drop it with the most telling effect.

Suppose for argument's sake that we should become embroiled in full-scale war with Red China. Our leaders should yield to frantic calls that the A-bomb be promptly dumped on major Chinese cities. On the other hand, neither should they be deterred from using the weapon by heartfelt cries that it is "inhuman."

So is a bullet.

BASIS OF REALITIES

Their decision should be made on the basis of the military realities they then confront. The A-bomb is costly. We don't have an unlimited store. Is the advantage to be gained through dropping it sufficient to offset these factors?

Can the same result be achieved more efficiently by other means? Or is the disposition of enemy resources such that the A-bomb's terrific concentration of force can be applied effectively?

These are the types of questions military men would ask themselves in any big war. A final decision likely would have to be made by the president as commander-in-chief. But all the ingredients of that decision should be military—not moral.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

A LETTER recently appeared on this page deploring the portrait and title at the head of this column (though speaking a kind word for the column's contents). As for the portrait, I have already deplored it myself in print. As for the title, I neither invented nor employed it myself. Nor do I think it greatly matters. A column, like a musical comedy or revue or variety show, can bear almost any title. You could name any of them anything you wanted, from "Watch Your Step" to "How's Your Father?" In works of greater unity, such as short stories, a title may possibly matter slightly.

THE CORRESPONDENT objected to the title containing something very dangerously like a pun, which he says is the lowest form of wit. I am not sure who began this "lowest form of wit" stuff. Without looking it up, I think I can safely say it began in the Augustan age of Swift, Pope and Addison, who all attacked punning. Well, if anyone is able to tell me all the different degrees of wit, I'll be happy to hear them, especially the highest ones. But unless you can put them all in a convincing order, I do not think you are able to rank just one or two forms.

Never fear that old Brocky loves all puns, however. To like them as a mere fashion is just as silly as it is to hate them when fashion tells you to. It seems to me that the world contains a few good puns and a lot of bad ones. To say the good are as low as the worst seems rather sweeping. To say that all puns are bad may be no wiser than to say that all jokes about mothers-in-law are good.

I AM NO punster myself, but I am forced to admit that if punsters err, they err in most wonderful company, including some of the wisest and witliest men who ever lived. There were Sidney Smith, most charming of talkers, and Tom Hood, and W. S. Gilbert and Charles Lamb. There were John Donne and Shakespeare. There was Pope Gregory the Great, who said the Anglican slaves were not angels but angels. There is even a pun in the Gospel of St. Matthew. Nor were Gregory and the Gospel trying to make you roar with laughter. Those who generalize too much about puns should remember that a pun is not always meant to bring either a hearty laugh or a formal groan. Do you always laugh or groan at jugglers? And is all juggling of one low standard?

It is hard to explain all this without seeming to defend too much the man who made up that simple-minded but inoffensive title up yonder. But in defense of much better puns, the thing should be explained now and then.

BETTER TOYS

HAVING JUST got home from a day-long visit to the toy departments, I am able to report that some of the toys actually seem less junky than last year's batch. Quite a few looked almost well-made, as if they might easily last several months. Of course it must be very depressing for a toy-maker who realizes that no matter what quality he puts into a toy, some ingenious kid is going to bust it all up. It must also be depressing to realize that at present prices, a toy of quality may price itself out of the market.

But the parent of a large gang of kids can get more than depressed by walking through acres of junk. He gets desperate as well as depressed. This year, for about the first time since the mid-war years, I saw a number of things I'd like a kid to have. If only I could afford them!

Speaking of toy departments, a friend of mine went into an Australian store and asked to be shown to the toy department. He was escorted to Gents' Cravats. They thought he wanted neckties.

MISSING THE POINT

IN ONE way, at least, this coming Christmas is going to be much worse than last. I can see it from here. A hundred different men and women, very properly saddened by recent events, will ask me (in sorrow or more likely in anger) why I should wish them a MERRY Christmas. Some of them will even send me cynical or sardonic cards; a few were already doing this by last year. What have they got to be merry about, they will ask me. And how the devil dare I be merry?

Well, I think they are missing both the pagan and the Christian point of Christmas. If you are a pagan, you should grab every chance at a good time, and Yuletide (to give the feast its pagan name) offers you the best chance in the year... perhaps the only chance.

TO be merry at that time is not to deny the existence of sorrow and danger and the rest. It is simply a sort of recess in between lessons in the school of hard knocks. I find it insulting to be told I don't realize there is an atomic bomb, just because I sit down and laugh once in a while. It's the only way to keep sane.

As for the Christian point of view, no sane man would suggest that our celebration of Christmas is a claim that the world is perfect. On the contrary, it is a symbolic heartiness in honor of the one thing which can lift up our hearts. A lighting up, so to speak, to remind us of the only light.

Most of us mix the two viewpoints. But however else they clash and contradict each other, neither of them favors gloom at Christmas. For once, all good fellows agree.

A NEAT POINT

May I, through your columns, make a suggestion to all those in the speeding lanes of Saanich to refrain from voting in the coming Saanich elections in fairness to the remaining ratepayers, who could very well be bound by decisions influenced by the voting of ratepayers whose interests probably will be centred in other districts shortly.

TIME AND MATTER

Mr. Pepper tells us that "Time antedated matter, and is responsible for all that has occurred."

I would like to ask him how he discovered the nature of the power inherent in time beyond its effect upon matter. Of course time is eternal, but meaningless without conscious entity.

On the supposition that in the distant past the whole of space was an infinite vacuum, how did time assert itself by producing stellar systems, and living organisms when it was never endowed with life in any shape or form?

A PAT ON THE BACK

Noticing a letter in the Christmas Herald of Dec. 1950, of Joe North, I thought I would like to write a letter of encouragement to him in your paper, as I have been a subscriber a number of years.

I am sorry he is unable to perform his usual Christmas giving to the sick and needy on account of his age and ill-health.

I know he has been a great benefit to the aged pensioners and also to the hospital. I am sorry to see him so discouraged, but cheer up, Joe, there are a lot that appreciate what you have done and will never forget it. I wish you the best of health and a happy Christmas.

PLEBISCITE

Well before election day shouldn't some definite information be given the voters through the daily papers about the meaning of the plebiscite for freedom from taxation requested by the managing committee of the proposed clubroom for the sightless people of Victoria?

Some voters think the plebiscite means that no taxes will be levied on private property for support of this clubroom for the blind.

Others consider that tax-free concessions made to any body of citizens seeking the favor would create a precedent that could not wisely be followed by similar concessions lest the city revenue fall short in consequence.

MRS. JANE MONTGOMERY.

STOCKTAKING

Five years ago we bound ourselves in partnership with numerous nations under the United Nations Charter after the manner of "We the People of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war... to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights... to establish conditions of justice and equity... to maintain and promote social progress... determined to preserve world peace," etc., etc.

Now, after a five-year trial what do we find? While halls of learning and science and invention have achieved wonders in some fields our record of international discord, industrial and economic ferment, paralyzing strikes, a sharp moral and spiritual decline, and even war itself leaves the ledger with a very red face, does it not?

A few weeks ago I drew attention to the Divine Charter drawn up by the Great Architect of the Universe with its marvelous provisions such as immunity from war, individual and national prosperity, never-failing bountiful harvests, harmonious relations, twixt capital and labor, no strikes, perfect equity and justice, a mere 10% taxes and no mendicant organizations. Can you imagine that? 'Tis true! But we have been too self-sufficient, arrogant and wilful to try this formula according to the directions set down in the Bible.

KOREAN COMMENT

I do not think any of us would wish to question the abilities of MacArthur as a general except, of course, for the fact that he must presumably be held responsible for the failure of his intelligence department. That he should have been allowed to reject the regular army intelligence department and run one of his own—if the Bros. Alsop are correct—is hard to understand. Also that a general in the field should think himself qualified to formulate policies—except privately as a suggestion—anything like his ideas about Formosa ought to be unthinkable.

What, however, I would suggest is this—if a similar situation to that in Korea had developed with a British general at the head and there had been any U.S.A. troops involved at all, what would have been the reaction across the line? There would, I believe, have been a stream of abuse without parallel. "The utter absurdity of allowing the ignorant and incompetent British to have charge of anything at all" would have been mild. Some of their broadcasters, in particular, would have exhausted their extensive vocabularies in saying what they thought about the matter. Probably the U.S.A. will eventually realize that if they had seen the wisdom of recognizing the Communists as the de facto government of China there might have been a reasonable chance of avoiding anything like the present state of affairs.

IMPERIAL WAR PENSIONERS

I refer to the recent visit of the British Minister of Pensions, Rt. Hon. H. A. Marquand, M.P., when he held a meeting at the Vancouver Hotel, in Vancouver. I assume that a similar procedure was followed by him when in Victoria.

As regards his meeting in Vancouver, two or three days' notice only was given to the headquarters of the Canadian Legion and Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, quite insufficient time for it to be publicized even around their branches; while pensioners not in either of these organizations, would have no knowledge at all, since it was apparently not publicized in the newspapers.

His speech at the meeting chiefly extolled the virtues of the British Ministry of Pensions in what they had done for Imperial war pensioners resident in Britain, since he took office two and a half years ago.

Little or no mention was made of Imperial pensioners resident in Canada and when asked to answer questions, allowed only 15 minutes, with the result that many would-be questioners had no chance.

It is very clear that the time is well overdue for Imperial war pensioners resident in Canada to make a concerted effort toward demanding just treatment from the British government.

I would therefore ask the courtesy of your columns to request Imperial war pensioners, and Imperials on retired pay, of all ranks and of all wars to send their names and addresses to me as soon as possible with a view to taking energetic steps to organize for action.

By I. NORMAN SMITH

ISTANBUL, Turkey—The people of Turkey are still talking about the general election of May 14, 1950, wherein they rose in their new-found freedom and tossed out the government of President Inonu. If anyone was more surprised than Inonu it was the new President Bayar and his Prime Minister Menderes. They are still looking through their cards for new faces for this or that post. Eleven of 15 of their cabinet have never been in the Assembly before. They are a business party with many professors and intellectuals in top places.

Smith

The Democrats, now in power, won 308 seats against 69 for the People's Republic Party. And the Republicans had been in power since 1923 when Ataturk established the new Turkish Republic and began his masterwork to revive this nation from its humiliation.

Ataturk had set up a republic and a constitution, but when dictatorship methods seemed surer and quicker he used them without pause.

NEW BROOM
He strode into his country with a new broom; abolished the Caliphate and canon law, closed most of the mosques for their attendants were becoming racketeers, did away with polygamy, unveiled the women, established civil law in place of Islamic law, replaced Arabic characters with Latin characters for the Turkish language and banned religious education in the schools.

Ataturk then equipped his people with blinkers so they would no longer look around the Middle East and long for the extensive empire that had crumbled.

No more pan-Islamism for Ataturk, no more sprawling Turkish leadership of the Moslem world. And, more important, no more inferiority complex from defeat.

Let Turkey smarten up and modernize and gets its own country into order. Be gone, superstition and halting tradition!

And so this ancient people became a new nation, and though it had been whipped in the first war and suffered hard peace terms, it had become by the second war a tough enough one to make Germany decide aggression that way would not pay.

DEMOCRATIC LINES
Ataturk died in 1938 and Inonu, his right-hand man became president. Inonu went on with the revival of Turkey, along even more democratic lines. Great pains were taken to get education going and to instill into the public a sense of respect for political traditions and administrative integrity. It was not all done in a day, nor indeed was the job all done. But Inonu was making progress and went so far as to put through a new electoral law on February 16, 1950, giving a vote to every citizen over 22.

As things turned out, "T" was a long way indeed for Inonu to go. For the consequent really free election in Turkey, chucked him out with something of the nonchalant elan with which a Turk rides side-saddle on a mule as it capers up a stiff cliffside. Inonu's friends say he knew it was coming and that he was convinced that only by so bold a sacrifice would Turkey learn the glory and validity of democracy.

Ups And Downs

"IT OFTEN happens," said the Elevator Man, "that people run to the lost and found department for items that they've never really lost at all. Many a woman has thought she left an umbrella on the bus, but found it when she got home that night. Many a man has found his 'lost' pipe in his pocket. And the same thing goes for people. How often you read of a search party going out after some unfortunate only to find that he's neither found himself or hasn't been lost at all. It happened the other day in Pennsylvania, where a gang was looking for a missing hunter. After they'd trudged through the cold and wet for a few hours, the hunter was accidentally found curled up asleep beside the stove in a country store. I often wonder what kind of remarks are passed by the rescuers at a time like that. 'Get lost' might be most appropriate, but 'drop dead' would likely be their true sentiments. Going up!"

"You may have heard," said the Elevator Man, "of the fellow who got lost on a stormy night. He was finally found half-unconscious in the blizzard and brought to a farmhouse. A doctor arrived. 'He keeps calling for a rum punch,' they told him. 'Excellent,' says the doctor. 'Fix it up and let me see it.' The farmer's wife mixed a large bowl of steaming punch and brought it to the medico. He looked it over, smelled it and then drank it down. 'Yes,' he said, smacking his lips. 'That's just about right. Now go back and make him one exactly like it, but only half as much.' Mezzanine!"

"These days," said the Elevator Man, "you can't help wondering whether we aren't all a little lost. Trouble is, most of the search parties seem to be lost, too. There's a technical point though. Can you be described as 'lost' when you don't know where you're going anyway? We're not so much off the path as trying to blaze one, and we only know which way we're headed by looking back to see where we came from. Some of it's such a sorry-looking panorama that even the unknown seems like a better bet."

THE HOME GARDEN

Imitate Natural Home To Grow Rock Plants

By JACK & HILDA BEASTALL

A new terminology awaits those who wander into the realm of rock plants.

The various geological formations found in the native habitat of these subjects have names which require understanding if success is to crown.

In the alpinist's language moraine, scree, and bog are familiar terms, and in each of these locations will be found a distinct type of vegetation.

Moraine plants will not thrive in a scree, nor scree plants in a bog, because in each instance one condition is the opposite of the other.

The moraine is a mass of rocks, stones, gravel, and a small percentage of silt, which is deposited at the foot of a melting glacier. It is usually located on a sunny slope and receives continual below-surface watering from the melting ice.

A scree could be described as a dry moraine. Located at the base of a cliff it is formed of rock fragments which have accumulated as the result of weather and slides.

The bog or marsh is essentially a low-lying area where water collects throughout the year. There is, however, always slow drainage so that the seepage never becomes stagnant, nor does its depth increase sufficiently to be classed as a lake. Unlike the moraine and the scree, soil is present which is often of a peaty nature and always saturated with water.

A collection of alpine often includes plants native to one or other of these conditions, and to grow them successfully it is necessary to imitate their natural home as nearly as possible.

In our rock garden articles we will tell how to stipulate these natural conditions in the home garden.

Construction Of Permanent Roads In Esquimalt Necessary—Wurtele

Rebuilding of certain main roads in Esquimalt without further delay is essential, Councillor A. C. Wurtele, chairman of public works in the municipality, declared today.

Seeking public support to the $100,000 road improvement by-law that will be submitted to municipal property owners on Saturday, Councillor Wurtele pointed to municipal funds spent over recent years for patchwork, giving no permanent result.

"From 1947 to last October, an amount totaling $69,900 was spent on temporary work on Esquimalt roads," he declared.

"This expenditure was unavoidable, but much of it would not have been necessary had permanent work been carried out previously. It is therefore essential that road construction work of a permanent nature—excluding drainage—should be commenced."

The councillor went on to explain that in 1949, council formulated a broad plan for road reconstruction and planned to introduce a by-law, covering the extent of this work, when a long-promised federal government grant materialized.

"As this grant was not forthcoming this year, the council prepared and introduced a more modest plan—the one to be voted upon Saturday."

Main criticism of the by-law, Councillor Wurtele observed, had been that it was not broad enough in scope and that the time would not be opportune to introduce it until the federal grant was received.

AGAINST MAIL FOR TROOPS

Only Softens Fighting Men War Veteran Declares

Exception was taken by a war veteran today to Roy Thorsen's plea in his Times "With the Forces" article to keep mail and parcels moving to soldiers.

"Letters should be few and far between. Parcels should be definitely out," said the veteran.

His reasons—he says nothing breaks down a soldier's morale more than constant contact with home. War is so far apart from domestic life that the best thing a combat soldier can do is to put it out of his mind as far as possible. Letters and parcels inspire too much nostalgia and sentiment for which their little place in war, and soften him.

"Easiest way," he says, "is for a soldier to place himself emotionally aloof; realize that he can't help at home beyond assigning part of his pay and home can do nothing for him; adopt a form of suspended mental animation as far as anything else but his war duties are concerned. In other words become a fatalist and ease the mental strain."

Nickel keeps
our milk pure...

Keeping milk pure begins in the dairy barns. Many parts of milking machines, cream separators and other equipment are made of Nickel alloys for cleanliness and resistance to corrosion.

Milk storage tanks like these are shining, spotless, hygienic inside and out because they're made of Chromium-Nickel Stainless Steel.

The pipes through which milk is pumped from one place to another in the modern dairy are made of Inconel, an alloy containing a high percentage of Nickel.

Forty-three years of research have uncovered hundreds of uses for Nickel in the United States and other countries. Now Nickel exports bring in millions of U.S. dollars yearly. These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees in Canada and also help pay Canadian railwaymen, lumbermen, iron and steel workers and other men and women making supplies for the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries.

VANCOUVER TO SCREEN CITY WORKERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—All city employees are to be screened and any Communists will likely be fired, Mayor Charles Thompson said Monday.

This policy was believed unprecedented in Canadian municipal government.

R.C.M.P. have already completed screening of the city police department, the mayor said.

He said the policy was being extended to other current departments as a civil defence measure in view of the current international crisis.

The new screening order will affect about 2,800 employees.

Hospital Charge To Municipalities Draws Fire Of Saanich Councillor

Saanich Council at its meeting Monday night, looked with considerable disfavor on the present system of municipalities making a 70 cents per day contribution to hospitals for Saanich patients.

Councillor John G. Ryan, who introduced a motion that the per diem payments be abolished, later asked that it be laid on the table for further discussion.

"The per diem charge is unfair because it falls on the property owner," Councillor William C. Kersey said.

"Well, someone has to pay it," Councillor George Austin pointed out.

The discussion arose from a letter of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, which suggested that a lump sum payment be made instead of the per diem payment.

Although popular with some municipalities, it was stated, the proposal has not yet been accepted because other municipalities would lose money through such a plan.

Council granted Sevenoaks Land Co. and others permission to install a water main on Admirals Road and Burnside Road through local improvement.

It refused Mrs. Marian Sherman, 2901 Seaview Road, permission to operate premises at 2546 Killarney Road as a multiple dwelling, which would be contrary to zoning regulations.

BACK CANAL PROJECT

The council unanimously promised its support to the Gorge canal project now being advanced by a representative committee of Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt.

B.C. Telephone Co. informed the council of its plan to sell Albion, Belmont and Colquitz subscribers regarding the Victoria flat rate exchange area. The company refused a request that all Vancouver Island exchanges be listed in one directory, instead of the two now in use.

The council building committee will investigate a complaint from R. Medler, 1250 Judge Place, that plaster and stucco on his house was damaged when the municipality blasted some rock near his home in September.

A by-law, given first reading, will limit the soliciting of wood sales and delivery of wood fuel to between the hours of 7 in the morning and 9 at night, with Sunday excluded.

Council supported a recommendation of H. D. Dawson, municipal engineer, that Dawson, Hall and Co. be paid $10,000 from the holdback following construction of Rithet Hill reservoir. This will leave a sum of $2,162 held back, he said, which is sufficient to do the work yet required of the contractor. A sum of $11,000 is left in the by-law fund provided for building the reservoir, he said.

Nanaimo Certain Lacrosse Entry

VANCOUVER (CP)—Nanaimo is almost certain to enter the Intercity Senior Lacrosse League next year. And it is just as certain that New Westminster will have only one team.

There is a possibility Vancouver will have one team less.

At least four of the six teams now in the circuit—Victoria, Adanacs, Indians and Burrards—are in favor of including Nanaimo. Adanacs, Dominion finalists this year, are considering an outright move of their franchise to Nanaimo.

13 Lucky Guys

by FRANK R. ADAMS

THE STORY: Sgt. Eddie Engstrom's squad is wiped out in action and the men realize they are dead when they find themselves unseen in Westway's, Mich., home town of most. Only Eddie's dog, Duke, can see them. But Eddie sees the sweetest girl he'd ever known—Margie Lou, who drives a bus. He goes to the bus terminal to find the lucky coin he had hidden when he drove the bus, and presently finds himself an unseen passenger of Margie Lou, who discovers the coin under the instrument panel.

XVIII

Margie Lou took her eyes off the road and gazed in sheer amazement at what she had in her hand. "I wonder how I ever happened to do that!"

"Look out!" warned Eddie. "You'll wrap this piece of junk around a telegraph pole."

"Thanks, mister," said Margie Lou, resuming her driving. "I was surprised by this thing I found under the panel there."

"It's a lucky coin." All at once, it occurred to him that they were talking, just as if he were really there. "Gee, did you hear what I said?"

"Sure. Why not?" Eddie couldn't explain why not. He was dumfounded by the suddenly bestowed gift of communication between himself and the object of his affections. "I guess it's because you got that lucky coin of mine in your hand," he decided.

"What do you mean, soldier, your lucky coin? How'd it get here?"

"Why I put it there. But that was a long time ago when I used to drive this same bus before I went into the army."

FUNNY IDEA

Margie Lou laughed, a very nice laugh, too. "That's a funny idea but I kind of believe you at that. Here, you can have it back."

Eddie almost reached for it but he remembered in time. "No, thanks. I couldn't take it." That was truer than she could know. "You keep it. Wear it on you somewhere all the time. It'll bring you luck."

"How about you, soldier?"

"Me? I don't need it. I got all the luck I can handle right now, just bein' able to talk to you."

"By rights you shouldn't." "Can you see me?" She looked aside at him.

"Of course. You're about the biggest man I ever looked at. You shouldn't stand where you are. If you were a driver once you know the rules."

"It's all right in my case. I'm a former employee of the company," Eddie assured her.

"I don't think that's any reason, and neither do you."

Eddie chuckled. "All right, a better one is, then, because I've been away a long time and you have to be nice to us boys when we get home."

"Are you on leave?" "Something like that."

The buzzer rang for a stop. Margie Lou steered over to the curb and put on the brakes. She wasn't any too good at it and Eddie lurched against her shoulder.

"Sorry," he said. "For what?" "I bumped into you."

"No, you didn't." That settled that. She couldn't feel it when he touched her.

RECOLLECTION

While the passenger was getting off Margie Lou glanced at him. A puzzled expression clouded her face. "Do you know, soldier, you look like I've seen you before."

He couldn't very well tell her they had been swimming together that very afternoon. "Probably we met somewhere before I went away or something."

Margie Lou shook her head. "I didn't meet many boys. I'd remember. What do all those ribbons on your coat mean?" Eddie looked down at his chest. He had never worn any campaign ribbons—you don't on active service—but now there was a very respectable collection of bars. For a moment he admired them himself.

"Those tell where I've been," he explained. "I was in the South Seas quite a while."

Margie Lou started the bus. "Were you hurt?" she asked. "Uh-huh. That's why I'm home for a while."

"You look as if you were getting well all right. Anyway you weren't killed. That's something."

"Yeah, it's something else again. The ones who get killed are the lucky ones in some ways."

"That's a funny way to talk. Why would you say a thing like that?"

"Why—because—because it's true, I guess. You sort of know where you're at after you're dead. You don't wake up scared and wondering what next all the time. And you don't have to kill anybody any more, either."

Margie Lou laughed a little. "You talk as if you knew something about it. But you can't. Nobody does, unless they're dead themselves."

"That's right," Eddie laughed, too. "Nobody does, until then."

Margie Lou still had the lucky coin in her hand. "Sure you don't want this back, soldier?"

"No, I want you to wear it on you somewhere, maybe on a string around your neck like us G.I.'s do with our dog-tags."

"I oughtn't to take it. I don't know you really at all."

"But you're goin' to," Eddie insisted eagerly. "Gee, I think you're—you're—we'll, you're nice. Maybe I could see you when you're off duty, Margie Lou."

"How did you know my name?" she asked startled.

"Why—I guess maybe the starter called you that."

"No, he didn't."

"Somebody did," Eddie hurried over that one. "My name's Eddie—Eddie Engstrom."

"Oh. You're at the top of that list of servicemen in the bus station."

"Yeah. Now that we've been introduced, how about that date?"

LATE PETER FRASER

Former Premier Of N.Z. Dies

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Peter Fraser, a Scottish cobbler's son who became New Zealand's prime minister, died today. He was 66.

Fraser's death came at 2:47 p.m. Tuesday after a brief rally Monday. He had left his hospital bed briefly for the first time since October.

He suffered from bronchitis and had had several heart attacks.

Fraser's Labor government was defeated in the 1949 general election.

He was the third former Commonwealth prime minister to die this year. He was preceded by William Lyon Mackenzie King of Canada and Field Marshall Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

He leaves no family. His wife died in 1945. The former prime minister was the son of Donald Fraser, a member of Canada's old Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Oliver Stanley Dies In England

READING, Eng. (AP)—Oliver Stanley, a leading member of the Conservative Party and former cabinet member, is dead after a long illness. He was 54.

Stanley had been a member of the House of Commons since 1924.

Among the government posts he had held were War Secretary, Minister of Labor, President of the Board of Trade and Colonial Secretary.

His death increases the Labor Party's majority in the Commons to seven, pending an election to fill his vacant seat.

He was the nephew of the Earl of Derby and the fourth member of his family to have been War Secretary.

FUEL BILLS GETTING YOU DOWN?

Putting fuel on the furnace of an uninsulated house is rather like running up the moving stairway that's coming down... you get nowhere. When your home is insulated you enjoy greater comfort, make fewer trips to the basement to tend to the furnace, and you save considerable on fuel bills, in fact over a period of years your insulation won't "cost" anything.

COLEMAN'S COLUMN

By JIM COLEMAN

MONTREAL—When the newspaper scribes are dishing out those sports "Opinions" at the year-end, they would do well to take a second glance in the direction of Montreal where a different little man occupies the general manager's office in the refurbished Forum. In four and one-half years, since he moved here from Maple Leaf Gardens, he has accomplished many things. He has completely rebuilt and revitalized the ramshackle Forum; he has promoted the construction of the great Cincinnati Gardens; he has brought Montreal its first Canadian junior hockey title and, for Montreal Canadiens, he has organized a powerful system of farm-clubs which extends from Victoria to Halifax.

Today, when many professional hockey clubs are suffering from financial malnutrition, Montreal Canadiens are leading the N.H.L. in attendance and are showing healthy increases over last year. Much of this increase is due to the fact that 3,000 seats were added to the Forum last winter but, even with larger accommodation, the rink is crammed for every National Hockey League engagement. When Frank Selke came to The Forum, the owners were satisfied with a gate of $13,000 for a "sell-out" at a National League fixture. Today, The Forum is grossing more than $25,000 per game and the prospective customers are fighting for seats.

Rubber Stamp Bounces

It was no secret that the 53-year-old Selke was alleged to be "washed up" around Maple Leaf Gardens in the summer of 1946. He had been acting manager of the building in the wartime absence of Conn Smythe—but the return of the colorful and ebullient Smythe had made that position untenable. Additionally, a younger man had been assigned to Selke's old desk in the Gardens publicity department and Selke was in grave danger of becoming a rubber stamp.

And, at the age of 53, Selke received the biggest break of his life when Senator Donatien offered him the job of managing The Forum and its hockey activities. The war was over; the time was ripe for changes at The Forum. Selke discovered that "Les Millionnaires" still were admitted to the entire rush-end of The Forum for only 60 cents. "Les Millionnaires" were loyal and boisterous rooters but they were singularly unprofitable spectators. He persuaded his directors to permit him to abandon the "rush section." He added box seats at that end, sold all the other seats at regular "reserved prices" and, although he earned the ire of "Les Millionnaires," he earned a bushel of important money for The Forum.

Sorry, Friend

Another important problem faced him. In some mysterious manner, the number of persons in The Forum on any one night never tallied with the gate receipts. Selke examined all the windows but they appeared to be barred tightly on the inside.

Private detectives who checked the crowd one night, informed the management that a total of 10,000 persons were inside the building. The management looked at their gate receipts which indicated that only 8,000 persons had paid the necessary tariffs.

Obviously, 2,000 strangers must have crawled up through the brine pipes or possibly the ceilings of The Forum were honey-combed by sewers such as those which provided highways for Jean Valjean and his pals in Paris.

Selke cracked down. From that day, precautions were taken to make sure that three or four midgets didn't go through the turnstile at one time. A few sharpies, who had been attending sporting events free of charge for years, bleated plaintively but their old friends on the turnstiles failed to recognize them any more and, reluctantly, they were forced to buy tickets.

After the war, Selke went to Toronto and was electrician at University of Toronto. Inevitably, his path crossed that of Smythe again and they struck up the strange business relationship that continued until 1946.

Wouldn't You?

Bystanders who, in later years, were puzzled by Selke's stubborn loyalty to Smythe in the face of Smythe's criticisms, will find this paragraph illuminating. Once, in the dark early days of the Maple Leaf club, Selke discovered that Smythe was paying Selke's salary out of his own pocket.

Now, little Frank is sitting atop the heap. His farm system already has produced Tom Johnson of Winnipeg and Jim McPherson of Edmonton for the Montreal Canadiens. And, Selke believes that Regina's Paul Masnick, temporarily on loan to Cincinnati Mohawks, is another Ted Kennedy. (He's kicking himself now because, while he was with Toronto, he persuaded Canadians to trade Kennedy to Toronto in return for Frankie Edmonds.)

Under the direction of Eddie Quinn and Raoul Godbout The Forum also is becoming the most successful professional boxing stadium in America. This success is embarrassing because the promotions are eyed enviously by the Norris interests which control the International Boxing Club.

If Selke has any worry, it is only that his money and life work are wrapped up in two buildings, the Cincinnati Gardens and Montreal Forum. And, he sees the tentacles of the Norris octopus reaching for new holds.

N.H.L. RACE TIGHTENS

Idle Max Bentley In Danger Of Losing Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's individual scoring race is tightening, but Toronto Maple Leafs continue to lead the pack.

League statistics released today show that while the Leafs retain a comfortable lead over the five other clubs they are being crowded by other snipers in the individual scoring scramble.

Leader Max Bentley of Toronto, sidelined through injury, is losing ground to three of his teammates.

Linemate Ted Kennedy is two points behind with a similar number of goals and 19 assists. Tod Sloan, top sniper with 16 goals, also is crowding his mates with a total of 26 points, three more than Sid Smith, another Torontonian.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk of Detroit is leading netminder with 12 goals-against average of 1.92 in 24 games. Turk Broda follows with 1.93 which is the Toronto team average. Broda's individual average is 2.05 with sub-goalie Al Rollins helping the team average greatly with his 1.44.

(The Vezina Trophy is awarded to the goalie on the basis of the team goals-against average and goes to the one who has played most games when a club has more than one goalie.)

Tiremen Tie Co-Ops For City Ice Lead

Tars Stand Ground Well; Servants Nip Fishermen

Navy's Wanamaker-Hill-Derry line, up from junior ranks, got a baptism of fire at last night's Commercial Hockey card in the Memorial Arena.

Bumped, badgered and belabored through a blistering beating by Douglas Tire, the kids stood up well and had the crowd with them all the way despite the 6 to 2 final score.

In the second game, marked (or marred) by 10 penalties and a case of concussion for Jack Quinn from a terrific pile-up into the boards, Meteors eked out a 3 to 2 victory over Capitals.

Fishmen and Civil Service iced the nightcap, which proved to be the most exciting contest as the government men tripped the league leaders for a 5 to 3 win.

ELPHICK GETS THREE The first game saw Douglas Tire going great guns, putting on by far their best show this season. Len Elphick, who performed the hat trick, was a standout for the winners. Newcomer Dennis Carroll was also effective, although his efficiency was hampered by three trips to the sin bin, one a major for cross-checking Crothers so hard that the Navy man had to be helped from the ice. Carroll is a rough, bruising type of player who skates with his head up and suggests that the opposition would be wise to do the same.

The substitute junior line got both goals for Navy. Hill scoring from Wanamaker on the first when goalie Ab-Elis let his eye wander to an argument going on in the corner. The other came near the end of the game when Navy was two men short, Hill scoring again.

QUINN INJURED Capitals and Meteors brought the crowd to its feet time after time in a hectic second game that saw the two teams battling throughout at almost equal strength. Meteors opened the scoring when Karst fired one at close range at the five-minute mark in the first period. Caps replied in the second on a rink-long rush by defenceman Weibe.

Going into the third, tied 1 to 1, Fowler put Caps ahead when he accepted a pass from Ron Bremner for the second goal.

The marker seemed to galvanize the Meteors, who laid on the weight in an effort to slow the opposition. The strategy worked. Although the motor men got five of the eight penalties meted out in the third by referee Leo Ornest, they also scored two goals, the last one when they were short-handed.

In a headlong rush on goal in the third period, Jack Quinn was injured when he crashed into the boards at terrific speed. The hard-working Meteor forward was hospitalized briefly with a slight concussion.

PUNCH LINE STOPPED A top-flight game by Civil Service, combined with last-minute strategy which backfired for the Co-ops, dropped the Fishmen, 5 to 3, in the final tilt.

Goalie Dave Friesen of the desk-men turned in a pretty job in goal, allowing the Co-ops punch line only three counters as he kicked out rubber right and left. With 30 seconds left to play, Civil Service broke a three-all tie when Harris sifted through the defence to score, unassisted. In a desperate effort to retrieve the counter, Co-op coach Feasey pulled goalie Jack Walker out and led four forwards. The final bell was only a split-second off when defenceman Jim Corvion of Servants shot from near the centre line and drilled one into the empty net.

The loss by Co-ops allowed Douglas Tire to pull up and share top spot in the league standings.

Summaries and standings follow: Douglas Tire 6, Navy 2 First period—1, Douglas Tire, McKillop (Gillespie) 8:45. Penalties: Johnson, Carroll. Second period—2, Navy, Hill (Wanamaker) 11:45; 3, Douglas Tire, Ginter (Wanawski) 14:48. Penalties: McGregor, Carroll, Elphick. Third period—4, Douglas Tire, Elphick 48:55; 5, Douglas Tire, Elphick (Reynolds) 12:07; 7, Douglas Tire, Elphick (Carroll) 19:45; 8, Navy, Hill (Derry) 19:35. ## Co-ops First String Leads Scoring

Max Swanson, Ed Varga and Norm LaCree, first-string forward line of the Fishermen's Co-op, are currently heading the scoring parade in the Commercial Hockey League. The trio added three points to their total in last night's game, giving Varga 29 points and Swanson and LaCree 15 points each. Co-ops broke iron-clad precedent by allowing this picture to be taken before the game, always considered bad luck by hockey players. The "no pictures until after the game" rule will be enforced from now on, declared coach Vic Feasey, after last night's 5 to 3 defeat by Civil Service.

Highton's Release No Reflection On Ability

Hee Highton, the ex-Cougar, will be here with the Vancouver Canucks tonight, but before anyone starts making a grudge fight out of his appearance against his old mates, in all fairness to his replacement, Jerry Cotnoir, a word of explanation is in order.

Highton was not given his release because of any deficiency in his goaltending ability but for the simple reason that the Cougars wished to own a goalkeeper of their own.

Highton was, and still is, the property of the Los Angeles Monarchs of the now defunct southern division of the Coast Hockey League, while Cotnoir came to the Cougars as a free agent and now is their property.

If Highton had stayed with the Cougars, club officials had no assurance that they would have been availed of his services again next year. But in purchasing Cotnoir from the Seattle Ironmen, the Cougars were reasonably certain of having a goal-keeper on their roster next fall.

REVERED FIGURE

This in substance is the reason for the switch in netminders, and a change that has put Cotnoir behind the well-known eight ball and made Highton sort of a semi-god to some puck followers.

This deity worship has come about mainly because of the Canucks great record since Highton joined their ranks some three weeks ago. Since that time the Canucks, who will also be sporting a new coach in Murph Chamberlain tonight, have won three games and tied five, giving them an unbeaten record that stretches over eight games.

Since Cotnoir's beginning as the Cougar's regular net custodian, the club has won three, lost three and tied two.

Cotnoir, however, could hardly be blamed for those losses, two of which came here at the arena at the hands of Portland and Tacoma. Vancouver supplied the other defeat in a rugged clash at Vancouver a week ago by a score of 2 to 1.

Just the same, the first appearance of Highton in enemy uniform should whet a few appetites and flavor up this meeting between those two arch-rivals no end.

SHOW ANYWAY

It matters little whether Coley Hall shows up; Chamberlain will put on a show that is rated on a par with the best Hall can muster. That is if Chamberlain's voice holds out. It didn't in Vancouver on Friday.

Add up a few of these points in the league race will be hanging in the balance and it sums up to an interesting evening.

Stan Long and Joe Evans of the recent Cougar absences may see action tonight.

SIX-CITY PRO LOOP PLAN FOR LACROSSE

Hume Suggests Nanaimo, American Cities Be Added To Present Intercity League

Expansion of the Intercity Lacrosse League and the possibility of establishing an international professional circuit similar to hockey's P.C.H.L. is under discussion by the lacrosse executive.

In a week-end meeting, the boxa men took up a suggestion put forward by Vancouver's Fred Hume that three of the teams operating out of Vancouver and New Westminster be disbanded and the lacrosse talent be made available to Seattle, Tacoma and Nanaimo for the organization of the six-team pro loop. Hume is co-owner of the New Westminster Royals hockey club.

The suggestion is not a new one, but previous attempts to build interest in lacrosse south of the line have not been successful. The present discussion is based on the argument that exhibition games haven't the same chance of success as a sound league, solidly based.

Hume is supported by other lacrosse men in the belief that the game is being concentrated in territory too small numerically to provide proper support. (There are three clubs in Vancouver, two in New Westminster.)

The general meeting of the Intercity League, scheduled for last week, has been postponed to Jan. 13, when the whole plan will probably be given an airing before the membership.

Rep Rugby Team Practice Tonight The following players are asked to attend a Crimson Tide Rugby practice at Macdonald Park tonight at 7.30:

Stead, Mitchell, Hicks, Hyde-Lay, Prevost, Bourke, Brumwell, Shipley, H. Turner, I. Turner, Jones, McDonald, Mills, Gower, Lott, Burnett, Mark, Cork, Millard, Campbell, Monahan, d'Easum, A. Bridge.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

This took place in the press box at Athletic Park during Saturday's Coast Soccer League match between Victoria United and New Westminster Royals.

Present were manager Tommy Restell of United; Ernie Costain, coach of the Oak Bay High School city championship club; a curly-headed kid whose features were creased with a perpetual grin, and a small boy who repeatedly made embarrassing remarks—embarrassing to Restell at least.

It was part of United's "Youth Movement," and Restell was doing a good job of explaining various aspects of the game as it was played.

"Look at that," said Restell, as soon as he had recovered his breath from climbing the stairs to the vantage point atop the grandstand. "Royals get one shot on goal and score one goal, while we get four and not one reaches the goalkeeper."

"How many games has United won?" queried the small boy. The fellow in the corner grinned but said nothing. Restell just scratched his iron grey locks.

Points Well Illustrated

"Atta boy, Denny," remarked Restell, as the chunky inside right hit a first-time inches over the bar. "Now there's a point we've been trying to teach the club all season: To shoot from the 18-yard line. Too often the forwards have been trying to get in close on goal. The result: The shot is blocked."

"Get back in your goal," said Costain, as Joe Travis of United came a good 40 feet out of his net.

"No," replied Restell. "That's where we want Joe to play. Notice how much simpler it is for the full-backs to clear the ball back to the goalie. It also gives Travis a better chance to spot his receivers on kicks and throws."

"How many games has United won this year?" interrupted the small boy. The chap in the corner grinned as the query went unanswered.

"There! See what I mean," said Restell, as McGee hit the top corner of the net with United's first of four goals. "He shot from the line and that doesn't give the defence a chance to get set."

"Travis is kicking well today," opined Costain as the veteran netminder put a goal kick on the toe of left-winger Jack Spry.

Much Wasted Time

"Yes," said Restell, "and notice where Spry is playing. He is just inside the centre line, right where he should be. Our big trouble this year has been in having to teach fundamentals. The players should come to us well versed in fundamentals, then we could start working on-plays. We've spent much time this season in teaching these elementary principles, and only now is it beginning to pay off."

"There's something you should know," Restell continued, directing his remarks at Ken Barnes, Oak Bay's fine centre forward prospect, concerning a shot from the right side by young Cedric Robb. "The idea on a shot like that is to aim for the far corner of the net; then, if you hook the ball, it will remain in play and another scoring opportunity may be set up."

"Well we're ahead now," said the small boy, "but the game isn't over yet. How much time left to play?" The fellow in the corner smiled as he answered: "Ten minutes to the half."

Applause Sometimes Helps

This went on for some time with Restell interpreting the plays on the field below, the small boy getting nowhere with his questions concerning United's record and the Oak Bay players intently absorbing Restell's remarks.

Said Tommy after the game (which in answer to the small boy was United's third win): "If I've only explained one or two points well to these kids, at least I've accomplished something."

"This is only part of United's policy of trying to improve the brand of soccer here. High School soccer players are welcome to attend the United games if they will contact either George Kulaj or myself."

"We've had a tough road to hoe this year and the fans have been rather unfair in their criticism of United. They have given fellows like McGee a rough time and they're the ones to blame for the kids not playing their best. We must give these youngsters a chance. We're doing our bit but we need co-operation."

The small boy was last seen in the front row at the hot dog stand.

'Y' RUNNERS NAMED FOR TRACK HONORS

Medley Team, Bill Parnell Set Standards

Official approval was given this week to two Canadian track and field records set by the Victoria Y.M.C.A. distance relay team of Bob Hutchison, Gordie Pynn, Rafael Duke and Bill Parnell. The records were set in Vancouver July 19.

The time for the one-mile medley relay (440, 220, 220, 880) of 3:28.8 gave the crack Victoria quartette both the Canadian Open and the Canadian Native records.

Bill Parnell is also credited with the Canadian native record for the mile with the time of 4:14.8, set in Vancouver Aug. 5.

The records were made official this week with the release of the Amateur Athletic Union classifications by Jack Davies, chairman of records.

Patterson Big Gun In Championship Win For Monterey

Dallas Patterson was the hero yesterday as Monterey School won the Greater Victoria Elementary Schools soccer championship by defeating Esquimalt 2 to 1 in overtime at Beacon Hill Park.

Patterson notched the first marker for his school early in the first half. His score was matched by Don Grey for Esquimalt before the rest period, and the two teams battled without a score through the second half.

A second overtime period was necessary to break the deadlock. Dallas Patterson again scoring to give his team the game and championship.

Vets Tip Scale On Heaney Team

Vets of France got revenge over Heaneys in their junior division soccer game at lower Beacon Hill Park over the weekend, when they reversed a previous defeat to dump the moving men 5 to 1.

Jack McIntyre, with three goals, and Alan Blair with two, were dynamos of the Vets attack. Malcolm Preston scored the only marker for Heaneys early in the game.

In a second division match at Heywood Avenue, Balmoral Thistles bowed to Sanich Thistles, 2 to 1, and Arroyo Cafe shut out Cordova Bay, 5 to 0, in a fourth division game.

McKinnon In Demand Again

City sports followers will be pleased to hear that Archie McKinnon, the popular Y.M.C.A. physical instructor, will soon be on the job again. McKinnon, who recently underwent a serious operation, left hospital Monday and has been told to take it easy around the house for a week before returning to work. It appears that Archie was taking things easy when he left the hospital, judging from look he receives from nurse Jean Fulton.

RIVALS HAVE 'MAD ON'

King Goes Route To Decision Bobby Lloyd

TORONTO (BUP) — Irish time in as many fights that Toronto's top-ranked boxer and the negro from Wilkes Barre, Pa., had battled the full route. Before they entered the ring last night each had won a hometown victory and the visitors tabbed them "hometown decisions."

Last night Lloyd, who weighed 137½ pounds, just couldn't keep up with the British champion who was a quarter pound lighter. Both fighters, mad at each other and the judges over what each said were previous "hometown decisions," campaigned for a knockout here last night but went the full 10 rounds without getting it. King won on points. The contest marked the third.

OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States track and field tryouts for the 1952 Olympic Games will be held in Los Angeles—probably early in July and just prior to the international games scheduled for Helsinki, Finland, Avery Brundage, president of U.S. Olympics, Inc., announced Sunday.

Baseball Startled By Decision On Chandler

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Failure to renew Albert B. Chandler's contract as baseball commissioner exploded a bombshell last night that left the sports world agog.

Flabbergasted by the major league club owners' decision, the baseball people attending the winter meetings wonder what the next move will be.

The most surprised man was Chandler. So stunned was the commissioner upon hearing the adverse news that he immediately resigned, then changed his mind and decided to finish out his current five-year term which expires May 1, 1952.

The anti-Chandler group is willing to buy up his contract if he will resign. Chandler's pay was officially announced last December to be $65,000 a year. It was then that the owners voted to grant him a $15,000 raise. One anti-Chandler leader who declined the use of his name said that owners were prepared to fire Chandler on the spot but cited a baseball rule that forbids the releasing of the commissioner before the expiration of his contract.

"We are prepared to pay him for the remaining 10 months tomorrow," the owner said, "if he were to resign. That would be the best thing for the commissioner to do. It would save a lot of embarrassment and pave the way for the search for a new commissioner."

Despite the decision to oust the commissioner, there was some indication today that the pro-Chandler group was prepared to make a renewed effort to save his job.

"I am going to urge Commissioner Chandler to finish out his term," said a club owner. "I feel that the next year and a half may bring a change of sentiment among those who voted against him."

Maxim Scores Kayo Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The world light-heavyweight boxing champion, Joey Maxim of Cleveland, last night knocked out Dave Whitlock of San Francisco in 2:37 of the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round fight. It was a non-title match.

Maxim weighed 183, Whitlock 181.

Maxim dropped his tough rival with a short terrific right to the jaw. The San Franciscan fell on his back and was not able to get up before the referee counted 10, although he was striving to do so.

Monthly Medal Golf On Sunday

Entries for the December round of the monthly medal golf competition must be in the hands of club secretaries by Thursday evening, according to an announcement today.

The competition will be played Sunday at Uplands Golf Club.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PROVIDES FOR PENNANT RACE EMERGENCY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—A rainy day postponement never hereafter can settle the American League pennant race and it was indicated today that the National League also would make plans to avoid possibility of such a "tainted" championship.

The American League voted last night to provide a two-day period of grace—if necessary—at the conclusion of any regular season, during which time all rained-out games affecting the final outcome of the pennant race, but no others, would be played in the city where they were rained out.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

West looked pitying at the declarer. "My boy," he said sympathetically, "some day you'll learn how to count trumps."

The declarer, our old friend Generous George, murmured polite thanks. But he looked surprisingly pleased with himself for a man who had just forgotten how many trumps were out!

East won the opening spade lead with the ace and led back his low diamond. Generous George won the second trick with the ace of diamonds and the apparently overlooked fact that there was another trump out against him.

Instead of drawing the last trump, George led to the ace of hearts, cashed the king of hearts, and then ruffed a low heart with the deuce of diamonds. West pounced on this trick with the ten of diamonds, pleased and surprised to win a trick with his "forgotten" trump.

Much to West's disgust, however, George made five diamonds in spite of the poor way he had played the hand. It seemed very unfair to West that a player who didn't count trumps nevertheless held such good cards that couldn't lose his contract.

After winning with his ten of diamonds, West led back the ten of clubs. Dummy put up the queen. East covered with the king, and George won with the ace. George then led the three of diamonds to dummy's seven and ruffed a low heart with the king of trumps.

This set up two low hearts in dummy. George then led the four of diamonds to dummy's eight and discarded his remaining clubs on the two established hearts (the already discarded a low club on the king of hearts). That left declarer with only good trumps in his hand.

West would not believe you if you told him that George knew all about the missing trump. And West would think you were crazy if you told him that his over-ruff had been a fatal play.

If George had drawn two rounds of trumps, only one trump would have been left in dummy. But George needed two trump entries to dummy—one to ruff out East's last heart, and the other to cash the last two hearts in dummy.

When West took a trick with the ten of diamonds, he seemed to be getting a trick for nothing. Actually, he made it possible for Generous George to win two heart tricks in exchange. George is always willing to do business on the basis of two for him and one for the enemy!

If West had refused to over-ruff (a very difficult decision, to be sure), George would have been set. He would eventually lose two clubs in addition to the spade trick taken by the declarer at the very beginning.

Cease-Fire In Korea Must Be First Step

Pearson Says Canada's Support Of Any U.N. Move Depends On 'Strings'

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (CP)—L. B. Pearson said Monday night that a cease-fire in Korea must be the first step in the settlement of the Korean and other Asiatic problems.

Canada's external affairs minister, in a broadcast over the CBC network, made the statement in answering the questions of various foreign correspondents at the United Nations.

He said, however, that Canada's support of any future U.N. resolutions calling for a cease-fire would depend on what "strings" were attached to it.

Asked by Henryk Gall of the Polish Press Agency if Canada's support of possible future negotiations in Korea would stop short at the problem of admitting Red China to the U.N., Pearson replied: "... We should not exclude from negotiations any pertinent subject."

He told Walter O'Hearn of the Montreal Star, chairman of the forum, that "we have to be careful not to let these negotiations go too far afield."

O'Hearn had asked if the proposed negotiations would consider all Asian problems at once, as the Red Chinese delegates suggested Saturday.

"Surely the first objective is to get the Korean situation settled satisfactorily and peacefully. And, if there are conditions attached to that which seem reasonable and which widen negotiations, we should consider that at least."

New Pat Bay Highway Ready In Two Years

Ottawa approval is virtually assured for reconstruction of the East Saanich Road.

This was disclosed in an address to the Sidney and North Saanich Progressive Conservative Association at Sidney Monday night by Works Minister E. C. Carson.

The announcement has been anxiously awaited for several months in view of the increasing traffic between Victoria and Patricia Bay airport.

It was feared for a time the federal government would withdraw from the project in which it will split the cost of the work 50-50 with the provincial government.

It was thought road-building work might be curtailed as a result of defence expenditures, although the Patricia Bay road might be classified as defence work because of the airport.

COST $800,000

Mr. Carson said the work will cost over $800,000. It will be completed in two years.

The highway will be rebuilt to Trans-Canada Highway specifications with 24 feet of pavement and 10-foot shoulders.

It will be rerouted in several places to eliminate curves and bottlenecks.

Mr. Carson said the province had had its specifications ready for some months but the Dominion had been continually questioning details and he had begun to wonder if the work was to be postponed indefinitely.

In a review of the highway work in the province, Mr. Carson said $75,000,000 had been spent on roads in the past six years, and $18,000,000 a year is being spent currently.

Favors Water Board In Greater Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Formation of a Greater Nanaimo water board was discussed by Mayor Earle C. Westwood at the City Council meeting Monday night, when he stated that without such a board there could be no city extension.

A water board would spread the cost over more consumers, would not impair the city's financial standing, and would assure more equitable distribution to outside areas, he said. Construction of a new pipeline from South Forks reservoir at a cost of $2,050,000 would be the cheapest source of supply, he said.

His report will be sent to surrounding districts of Brechin, Harewood, Departure Bay, Northfield and Chase River.

Burgess Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

To tell and loved, some, none is fair.
Who yields completely to despair.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Peter sat at the edge of the dear old briar-patch looking out. She was worried. Where was Peter? He hadn't come home, and he should have long ago. Here it was broad daylight and no Peter. He should have been home at break of day. It wasn't safe to cross the green meadows after daylight. There was nothing to hide under or behind. He should have been home before jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun began his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. Why wasn't he? Had something happened to him? Was he over in the green forest? Was he out in the old pasture? Was he at the smiling pool? Perhaps he was in the old stone wall on the edge of the old orchard.

NO BUSINESS THERE

Wherever Peter was, he was where he had no business to be at this time of day. Why couldn't he be content to stay at home as was she? She shook her head sadly as she thought of the unnecessary risks Peter was forever taking.

What dog was that over in the old pasture? She never had heard that voice before. He must be new in the neighborhood. Who was he chasing up there in the old pasture? Could it be Reddy or Mrs. Fox? Or was it her father, old Jed Thumper, the grey old rabbit that had lived so long in the old pasture? She didn't worry much about him. He was smart, was old Jed Thumper, or he wouldn't be alive today. Could it be Peter?

SITS UP ANXIOUSLY

She went to the edge of the old briar-patch on the side nearest the old pasture. She sat up with her long ears standing straight up to catch every sound. At the same time she looked anxiously all along the edge of the old pasture where it joined the green meadows. From under the fence shot a brown form. She knew what it was. It was Peter. No one but Peter could run like that. And how he was running, lipperty, lipperty, lip! A moment later out behind him ran a dog. Mrs. Peter never had seen him before. He was barking just as she had so often heard Bowser the hound bark when chasing Reddy Fox. His legs were short. She saw that at once. She was sure that Peter would reach the dear old briar-patch before he could possibly be caught by the dog and she breathed a little easier.

Then her heart seemed to jump right up in her throat only to only to sink way down

Strategic War Materials From W. Germany Flow To Satellite Countries, Russia

By BRACK CURRY AND RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

FRANKFURT (AP)—Highly strategic war materials are flowing behind the Soviet Iron Curtain from West Germany, and the Western allies are powerless to stop them.

Articles such as machine tools, ball bearings, optical supplies, steel tubing and raw steel are being moved secretly into the Russian satellite bloc.

Allied officials believe that much—or most—of this material finds its way directly to Russia. It is believed also that quantities of rolling stock purchased from United States army surplus has been deviously shipped to Russian satellites for relay to Russia.

The Western allies find themselves helpless. They have export licensing power by the West German government, which hasn't the power or means to police the ultimate destination of purchased products.

Allied sources say they have no way of determining the exact amount of contraband that has gone to the Russians. But "we feel it was and is of sufficient quantity to make a substantial contribution to the Communist bloc's war potential," one source added.

A Ruhr firm, for example, exports steel to West Berlin buyers who ostensibly are legitimate dealers. But after the steel reaches Berlin it disappears. The shipped either directly to Russia, allies believe it is quietly taken for to one of her satellites.

The Case of the Unbidden Guest

THIS WAS ALWAYS the worst time for Mrs. Walker, this moment when she actually began a visit. It didn't help to remember that she had had this experience countless times before... that her life was an endless round of such "visits" to her relatives. It didn't help to think that she would be welcomed with joyous cries of "Nana," and an affectionate kiss from her daughter. For much as she tried to make her feel at home she was always a visitor—a feeble old woman without money, without independence.

She felt unwanted—unbidden. And no amount of love and affection could change her feeling. A few gifts tucked away in her suitcase for the children would have helped—presents like she used to bring when John was alive—but John's estate hadn't provided even that small measure of comfort.

For a fleeting moment she held on to the past—it was all she had as she looked forward to the future.

VICTORIA MUST BE 'STUFFY,' IN PARIS CARS USE SIDEWALKS

"People are a little different in Europe. In Paris we saw a man driving his car down the sidewalk, and people often use the sidewalk to park. Maybe we're a little stuffy in Victoria," R. B. Wilson of the Gyro Club told fellow members Monday when he was showing color pictures of his trip to Great Britain, France, Switzerland and the Azores.

"But," he said, "I am glad to be home, where our future lies ahead of us. I think we are God's most fortunate people."

Court Orders Report On $900,000 Will To Find If There Was 'Gigantic Forgery'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Possibility that the $900,000 James Thomson will, by which Vancouver-Breman-Gilbert S. Campbell stood to inherit $600,000, may be a "gigantic fraud," was raised in the B.C. Supreme Court by Chief Justice W. E. Farris. When the case opened Monday, Campbell officially abandoned his suit to prove the will genuine.

Chief Justice Farris adjourned the case to give 14 other named beneficiaries an opportunity to study their position and decide if they wanted to try to prove legality of the will.

Six cousins of sordid millionaire Thomson were prepared to oppose the testament on the grounds the signature of Thomson and his witnesses, Agnes Campbell and Charles E.

Smith, were forgeries. Both witnesses are dead. The will was found in a dusty corner of a real estate office here 13 months ago.

It was indicated that if the administrator found anything suspicious, he would inform the police, who would determine whether "this is a gigantic fraud or forgery" and "if there should be a criminal prosecution."

AGED COUPLE DIE TOGETHER

LONDON (Reuter) — Married 57 years, Bert Fisher and his wife Geraldine had hoped never to be separated. Both died Monday within a few hours. Both were 83.

House, Yule Gifts Go Up In Flames

WINNIPEG (CP) — Plans for Christmas in their new home were shattered last night for George Jones, 25-year-old navy veteran, and Viola, his wife.

Returning from a shopping trip with their four children, they found their four-room frame bungalow in Fort Garry on fire. It was destroyed, together with newly-bought furniture and Christmas presents for the children.

U.S., Commonwealth 'Preventing War'

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia told the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association today that traditional United States Commonwealth friendship and armed might are preventing another war.

"If the British Commonwealth and America fell out it would be a bad day for the world," Menzies said.

BY ART STOTT

If you don't know anything about skiing, you're inclined to glamorize the sport. You think of the adepts as young men and young women with wings on their feet, gliding gracefully as birds over crisp, new-fallen snow. To you they're bright and lean athletes, gay and smiling like the Sun Valley and Lake Placid posters.

You picture the ski grounds not only as dazzling slopes of virgin snow, with dark conifers, frosted like cake decorations, breaking the monotony of the rolling white blanket. You imagine them, too, as spots of scenic grandeur, high in the clear air, through which you can see for miles to the haunts of caribou and moose.

Not last Saturday, though. It rained! Mount Seymour rain has special qualities. It doesn't sting with a harsh beat. It falls lightly on your head and shoulders, seeks out the spot where your coat collar isn't tight against your neck and streams down. It's more penetrating than any rain we have on the island. And it's aqueous. It wouldn't be true to say you couldn't see your hand in front of your face on Mount Seymour Saturday. You could. I tried it and even the bump on the first knuckle joint of my left index finger was plainly visible at arm's length. The same grandeur of Mount Seymour, though, I'll have to take from the snapshot album of friends.

THE SNOW THAT should have been several feet deep was worn off in patches of Manning Run—that's a downhill path skiers speed along with soft fir trees beside it for novices who want to slow down. The white stuff didn't seem to want to stay around. A lot of it was heading for a Saturday night in town—fast and in torrents.

E. G. "Cy" Oldham, head of the parks division of the B.C. Forest Service, told me I'd seen Seymour almost at its worst. But good, bad or indifferent, the weather didn't worry a couple of hundred Seymourites who assembled to see Lands and Forest Minister E. T. Kenney cut a green ribbon to open the newly completed road to the park.

THEY WERE THERE in numbers and in good spirits. At the end of the road, where the crowd left the cars and piled into a steep-roofed log building for coffee and sandwiches, everything was rosy. They just let their smiles be their umbrellas, and U.B.C.'s Dr. Norman Mackenzie, beaming like the rest, thought a road opening in the rain was just "lovely." Mr. Kenney had told the assembly the Seymour development had cost $500,000 and that it was a good investment for the people of B.C. He denied government responsibility for the rain, but he was fair about it. He didn't blame the Opposition.

A stranger to ski crowds couldn't get over the happy faces. Officials and guests walked in wet as drowned rats, but laughing. A few stewards, who'd gone up to the higher slopes, trudged back, soaked too, but looking pleased. Feather, it appears, doesn't matter to a ski crowd, even if you get the idea its members would like a little snow.

OLE JOHANSEN, Seymour ski ace, looking at the rain, pointed out quite cheerfully that it could just as easily have been snow. Up at the Park Ranger headquarters—a masterpiece of peeled log construction with a hand-made shake roof and hand-made furniture done by the St. Pierre-John Naniak, the caretaker, talked blithely of the beautiful weather the day before.

Series Of Mishaps Fails To Dampen Seth Bruce's Love For Life At Sea

Indians Want British Back Says Major

The Indian "man on the street" wants the British to come back to India, Maj. H. S. C. Archbold, 772 Victoria Avenue, said today following 15 months spent in Kashmir, Pakistan and India.

"The common people almost wept when the British went out," he said, "and now they want them back. They used to stop us on the street and ask us to help them."

Under British rule, he said, the farmer was not too well off, but he knew that the administration was honest and dependable.

Under the Indians, he said, officials are corrupt, and the aged Oriental "squeeze" has become an accepted part of the life.

ACTING AS REFEREE

Maj. Archbold spent seven months in Kashmir on the "cease-fire" line where his duties, along with nine other Canadians and other nations' officers, were mainly those of referee in the dispute between Pakistan and India over military violations of the Karachi agreement.

He also spent four months as United Nations liaison officer at Pakistan, and four months in a similar post at Indian Army headquarters in New Delhi.

"In this situation, the Communists have stepped in," Maj. Archbold continued. "They make no reference to Communism. They simply tell the people that support for them will bring the British back. Nothing could be further from the truth."

EXTREMELY NAIVE West Pakistan, strongly Moslem, has nothing to do with Communism, he said, but East Pakistan is a different story.

"East Pakistan has a large minority of uneducated Hindus, exposed to Communism to their east," he said. "It is strong there, and the Indian government is extremely naive and will not recognize its existence."

He said the Indian people were tremendously interested in Canada, and had a high regard for Canadians. Because of Canada's position in the Commonwealth, he said, the Canadian officers were able to get along well with their work, since points of view were somewhat similar.

Richard Pollard, 3135 Blackwood Street, was reminded to Saturday for trial on a charge of careless driving. He earlier pleaded not guilty.

THIEVES TURN ON LIGHTS, TAPS Thieves were not content with seeing for valuables in the home of Wing Hope, 4334 Government Street, last night. They turned on all the lights and every water tap before leaving after ransacking cupboards and drawers. Nothing of value is believed to have been taken.

Ill-luck on his first venture out to sea on his newly acquired pleasure craft has not dampened the love of Seth Bruce, gardener at Butchart's Garden, for the sea and all its perils.

Mr. Bruce, who has just purchased the 26-foot pleasure craft, Freda, from James McLeod, had some hair-raising experiences when he first put out to sea, culminating in his boat grounding on the rocks.

Setting off from Victoria harbor for Todd Inlet, he first encountered the Ss. Princess Maquinna at the harbor entrance. His boat nearly collided with the C.P.R. ship which had to reverse her engines to avoid an accident.

The Freda continued on her journey. On reaching the entrance to the small channel which separates Discovery and Chatham Islands, off Oak Bay, it grounded on the rocks and remained there. Several owners of pleasure crafts offered to take Mr. Bruce ashore but like a true mariner he decided to stick to his ship.

Mr. Bruce slept all night on the deck of the ship which began to take water. The next afternoon Victor Hirst, Oak Bay Boat-house proprietor, went to his rescue and towed him ashore.

It was a ticklish job as the Freda had taken plenty of water. On reaching the Oak Bay Boat-house only the wheelhouse and the mast was above water.

Mr. Hirst got the boat afloat today with six empty oil drum barrels. Repairs will have to be carried out to the engine and hull.

"It was quite an experience," said Mr. Bruce. "But I'm not going to give up boating because of bad luck. I like the sea too much."

Civil Defence Discussed By Municipal Heads

Municipal officials agree on civil defence zone. From left: Mayor George, Reeve Thomas, Esquimalt; Reeve Gibbs, Oak Bay; Reeve Casey, Saanich; standing:

Councillor Speirs, Esquimalt; City Manager Wyatt, Oak Bay Engineer Musgrave; Saanich Engineer H. D. Dawson.

5-Mile Circle Defence Zone Group Agrees

All territory lying within the five-mile circle was designated a "co-ordinated civil defence zone," Mayor George announced following a meeting in his office Monday of officials from all municipalities.

A special meeting of City Council has been called for 3.30 Friday to authorize the engineering department to prepare statistical information on public services.

Information relative to sewerage, water, utility lines, types of buildings, fire services, hydrants and transportation will be sought from all municipal councils.

The meeting also felt a co-ordinator to handle civil defence should be obtained through advertisement and agreed the defence zone would take in all Greater Victoria municipalities and probably View Royal.

Mayor George was named chairman of a co-ordinate area committee and city manager Cecil C. Wyatt interim secretary.

THREE CHEERS, BOYS, MISTLETOE WILL BE HANGING HERE AGAIN

Mistletoe, that odd parasite held in veneration by ancient Celts and Teutons, is making its first appearance in Victoria since the war.

This mistletoe is grown on Californian apple trees, but Victorians are broad-minded enough to realize that "it's the spirit that counts," and use it accordingly.

It was at all times a ceremonial plant among early European nations, especially when growing on oak trees. The custom of kissing a "nifty" under the mistletoe arose from the early rites.

Guild Raises Protest Over Scottish Skipper

Announcement by Transport Minister Chevrier that a non-Canadian has been appointed to skipper the new west coast weather ship Stonetown was received here with mixed feeling. Capt. J. W. McMonagle of Glasgow was recently named to command the vessel.

Members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild in Victoria felt that a Canadian master should have been appointed to fill the job.

Meanwhile, the guild with headquarters in Vancouver, has protested to the minister the appointment of the Scottish skipper.

Capt. Walter Gosse, president, said there was nothing personal about the protest.

"But Canadian citizens are footing the bill for those weather ships and they are paying the salaries of the men aboard them," he said. "We think that those men should all be Canadians."

G. F. Bullock, guild executive secretary, said appointment of the Scot could not be explained by any shortage of trained men in Canada. "We have a lot of Canadian masters who can handle the job," he said.

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving, Sidney T. Anderson, 204 Skzanne Place, was fined $35.

Legion Champions Tax Employees

Protest Resolution From Ad Astra Branch Goes To Mayhew, Pearkes

The Ad Astra Branch of the Canadian Legion here has taken up the cause of between 15 and 20 civil servants in the Victoria Income Tax Offices faced with unemployment or sharp cuts in salary as a result of a reorganization of the federal department.

At a meeting Monday night the Legion branch passed a resolution in which:

1. The proposed release of the income tax workers with no offer of a position in some other branch of the public service was "strongly condemned; and
2. The responsible cabinet minister was asked to publicly clarify the exact status of the permanent civil servant.

It was stated in the resolution that among those who may lose their jobs in the civil service were permanent employees as well as temporary status veterans who were promised permanent status after six months satisfactory service, but who were never given their appointments although they had not been discharged.

STIFF PAY CUTS

It is not known how many of the 15 to 20 workers the government plans on releasing and how many may take cuts in pay. Some say the new classifications in position they are slated to fill will mean drops in salary of $40 and more a month.

The Legion points out that veterans given jobs in the income tax offices on their return from overseas were encouraged to make retroactive payments to the superannuation fund in order that the time spent in overseas service could be counted as time spent in the employ of the public service. Those facing release would lose a great deal as a result.

The resolution points out also that employees who have held permanent appointments over two years are not eligible for unemployment insurance, and those suffering war disabilities will have difficulty in obtaining other employment now.

Copies of the resolution are to be sent to Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew, Maj. Gen. George Pearkes, V.C., and other Victoria branches of the Legion.

Meanwhile, Fisheries Minister Mayhew has stated from Vancouver that the reorganization of the office in which re-examination of employees is being carried out, has nothing to do with the establishment of Vancouver Island as a unit separate from the mainland in tax collections. He said the reorganization was part of a Dominion-wide plan resulting from progress in the department in catching up with a huge backlog which accumulated after the war.

He thought there would be a sizeable reduction in staff at the Vancouver offices but it was not planned to release many from the Victoria offices.

Fearful Feeling Among Germans

Vienna is gradually becoming a "paralytic," Miss Phyllis Baxendale, German instructor at Victoria College, told a University Extension Association audience at the college auditorium Monday night.

"With all four powers located there, a fearful atmosphere hangs over the city like a pall," she said.

Describing her observations during a long holiday spent in Europe this year, she said the average German worker is respectably clothed but inadequately housed.

"He works long hours, but is happy to be doing so," she said. "His chief enjoyment is an excursion with his family by bicycle to the country."

She said the Korean situation could easily be duplicated in Germany, where the people feel they are a "defenceless buffer" between east and west.

"They seem to feel they are caught in a trap, and are just waiting for the trap to be sprung," she said.

An audience of about 200 heard the address, last of the association's programs for this year.

FAMILY TRUCKS HOLLY TO DECORATE EDMONTON

Citizens of Edmonton who are short of natural Christmas decorations are assured today of having plenty of holly and cedar branches to decorate their tables.

On their way to Edmonton in a truck today are three Victorians with a load of holly and cedar branches. They are Mr. and Mrs. C. Baldwin of Victoria and "Puddle," a cocker spaniel.

The couple, on hearing that there was a shortage of holly in the Alberta capital, loaded their truck with 32 10-pound boxes of holly and 100 bunches of cedar branches. They started immediately for Edmonton and hope to be back in Victoria in time for Christmas.

"We heard that there wasn't enough holly to go around in Edmonton," said Mr. Baldwin as he was about to leave on the boat, "so we are losing no time in getting some there in time for Christmas."

IN COURT

VICTORIA

Trial of Allan Edgar Todd and Frank Cross, on a charge of taking a car without the consent of the owner, was completed in city police court today. They were remanded to Wednesday for judgment.

They were charged jointly with Ivor Harold Hunt, with taking a 1950 model car owned by R. B. Cieri, 847 Yates Street. Hunt pleaded guilty. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

The three were in the car when it was stopped by R.C.M.P. officers N. G. Becker and Ken Sutherland at Colwood Corners Sunday night.

Charge of threatening against Peter Frankham was withdrawn after his wife, Jean Mary Frankham, had told Magistrate Hall she was satisfied now that her husband had been bound over in another court to be of good behavior.

First apprehension for shoplifting during the Christmas season brought Gavin M. Sinclair to court. He pleaded guilty to stealing three shirts from T. Eaton Co. and was remanded to tomorrow for sentence. He explained to Magistrate H. C. Hall: "I recently got out of jail. I have been unable to get a job. I have been broke and had no place to stay and that's why I stole the shirts. I couldn't get any help from the John Howard Society."

Anton Konkin was committed for trial on a charge of knife-wounding John Novak with intent to maim, on Oct. 10 in the kitchen of the 2571 Cook Street Novak home.

Decorations Newer, Cost Less Than Last Year

By PENNY SAVER

Festooning is the thing... not to be confused with "The Thing" being so widely sung about by the vociferous Phil Harris... for this Yuletide's theme of decorations. This plastic festooning is about four inches wide and comes by the yard in shining colors of green, red, mauve, silver and gold, for 49 pennies.

The scope of this trimming is unlimited. It can be used for gift decoration. To add sparkle to the Christmas tree, or by making a form of a tree, the festooning can be wrapped and swirled around it to create the brightest creation going. Wrap the festooning around a long stick and you'll departments. A little tinkling melody caught my ear this morning... it was just a little different from the others being played in the store... so I stopped to investigate the whereabouts of same. Well, bless its little heart, the tune was coming from the depths of a scene depicting the First Christmas. The scene was set with little figures kneeling before the Christ child in the stable at Bethlehem and the Wise Men with their gift offerings. An effect that the Wise Men are actually entering the stable is created with the use of revolving platform on which the men stand.

The sets are selling for $6.95. With a little know-how and a smattering of imagination, 'tis a sure thing a Christmas table centerpiece can be made with your own two hands... you might enlist the aid of another pair, if necessary. With slabs of "ice"... a plastic blown affair... measuring about nine by six inches, to form as a base, the rest is duck soup! In the 45 cent oblong slab, square or round edges, you can sit a sugar plum tree, sizes from 49 to 75 cents; a silver bauble corsage bouquet, 49 cents or for the silver blue ones, 35 pennies. ## YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Husbands and wives are certain to disagree about how they shall deal with family problems because no two persons from different backgrounds and upbringing can possibly think exactly alike. Mrs. C. J. M. wants me to settle an argument for them.

"Our discussion has to do with the way my husband deals with our son's report card. He is in third grade. My husband looks at the card and finds he has C in every subject. Last year in second grade he had A's and B's."

"Now, our daughter is in second grade and she gets all A's and B's. Our son is very hurt when his father makes a comparison between his grades and his sister's. My husband claims by doing this the boy will have some incentive to do better. I disagree emphatically. Who is right?"

There is only one opinion about this subject. It is always wrong to compare one child to another when it is to the disadvantage of the child. So you are 100 per cent right.

This is no incentive for the child to work harder in fact it motivates less effort. If the child feels unhappy and envious his tendency is to say, "I don't care what marks my old sister gets. I'm just as good as she is." And such a spirit is not an incentive to try to do better.

It might be very much more to the point to compare the boy's second-year grades with his present ones and ask him if he thinks that with a little help he might improve them. Talk to his teacher, ask her how you can help.

Our leaflet No. 86 "How To Be a Good Parent," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Wife Outraged By Court Order Requires Husband To Help Support Widowed Mother

Dear Mary Haworth: My husband is one of six children, and when they were small his mother divorced his father and after refusing any support money or help, she placed two of the children—John and his younger brother—in a charitable institution. John was 10 years of age, and his brother eight, at the time. They remained in the institution for almost 10 years, while his mother lived in some man's home and helped raise his children.

Mrs. Doe, I'll call her, was well taken care of; had her own car, for coat, etc., yet never during this time did she seek to remove the two boys from the institution and care for them herself. Many years later she married the man whose children she had raised. He died a year ago and recently Mrs. Doe went into the family court and won a settlement from each of her children. The story of her life was not allowed to influence the judge's ruling; and we intend to appeal the verdict.

John and I are not in the position to pay the amount required of us. We have three children and are just meeting our own expenses. And we feel that the four children whom Mrs. Doe kept with her during her heyday should be held morally and legally responsible for her support. At present she lives with a daughter, helping with the housework and baby-sitting for her; and she never visits the homes of either of the two sons she "orphaned."

If my mother-in-law were destitute we would make sacrifices to help her, but such it not the case as can be proved. We wonder just how the situation looks to a person with your insight; and whether or not you think we have moral or legal right to feel that the court's decision was unjust. We would appreciate an early answer, as the appeal (if any) must be filed immediately.

GALLANT WOMAN IN HER HEYDAY

Dear K. D.: Somehow Mrs. Doe emerges from your narrative as a rather gallant character in her heyday, whereas you seem merely determined to give her the worst of it in every respect. You say she relegated two sons to a charitable institution when they were small, after divorcing their dad and refusing support money or other co-parental help from him—as if to imply that she had heartlessly and senselessly dispersed the family.

But I doubt that she disposed of the boys so high-handedly, chiefly because it is entirely unlikely that a charitable institution would (or could) accept two children and keep them for 10 years, unless the proper authorities had endorsed the arrangement, after checking the parents' circumstances, purposes, ability to provide, etc.

Probably the truth of the matter is that John's father was a ne'er-do-well, who had no steady income and no prospects, so that Mrs. Doe didn't try to wring blood from a turnip, as the Irish say, and got the divorce after he deserted, or may be abused her intolerably. The fact that she took four of the six children along with her to a job as housekeeper for some man, whose children also became her charges, suggests that she was a pretty staunch person then, with far more enterprise than selfishness in her make up.

PERSON'S WORKS PROVE HIS WORTH

As for the years immediately following, in which she acquired a car, fur coat, etc., yet made no move to take the boys with her, why not assume that her employer, though generous in some ways, just put his foot down against bringing more children into the housekeeper's quarters. One could hardly blame him, supposing he did; and although it might have been heroic of Mrs. Doe to insist on having the boys with her at all costs, still, heroics that threw her out of a job and rendered all homeless and penniless again would have been contrary to common sense—more lunatic than expressive of real mother-love.

You don't say what sum the court requires of John, in the way of cash allowance to his mother, but if her support is to be divided amongst six children, it can't be much; and my advice is to pay your share with good grace, as an investment in good respect. You would be dishonoring yourselves, and giving your children cause to blush for you, if you tried to disclaim any and all responsibility for the welfare of John's mother.

Operation Barrymore Brings Back The Famous Profile

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Exclusively Yours: Movietown insiders are predicting an any-day now smash-up of the Judy Garland-Vincent Minnelli marriage and are even whispering the name of Judy's next husband.

John Barrymore Jr.'s profile will look more like his famous father's next time you see him on the screen. The Barrymore sprig had a lip scar removed at a Hollywood hospital. Howard Hughes' long-shelved "Vendetta" will get a holiday release to further bolster the stock of Faith Domergue.

Spike Jones and his band wore their union suits at the opening of Hollywood Boulevard's Santa Claus Lane, explaining: "We're union musicians, aren't we?"

Marie Wilson, sitting out a six-week Las Vegas divorce from Alan Nixon, will commute to Hollywood weekly for her air show, being allowed a 24-hour absence from the state. The four Crosby sprouts will split the profits of that record album they made with Bing. It's out-selling every album on the market.

Henri Rochard, the author and "hero" of "I Was a Male War Bride," has come up with a sequel, "Always a Bride Never a Groom." It's been submitted to Stanley Kramer. A burglar broke into the safe at Palm Springs' Colonial House and made away with every registration card ever signed by Hollywood star guests. A new way to get autographs?

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Former Vancouver Comedian Head Of Bow Tie Society

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Congratulations are in order. Alan Young, the British-born comic, formerly of Vancouver, has just been made president of the Businessmen's Society for the Perpetuation and Circulation of Bow Ties.

Congratulate me, too. I have also been named president of the society.

We have been selected for the honor by Edward Oelsner, an insurance man who is also a president. The society boast 100 business and professional men as members—all are president.

The men plan to send President Truman a membership because of his valiant service in popularizing the bow tie. He would be the president of the society, of course.

Oelsner said one of the society's ceremonies is exchanging ties. "Whenever we (members) meet at lunch or dinner, we trade ties. In that way you never get tired of wearing the same tie. And they will go with any color or outfit. That's not true of a four-in-hand."

I asked about the other advantages of a bow tie.

"Why, they make a man look younger," Oelsner replied. "They give him a lift, make him look neat. You'll find that the men who wear them are generally successful in their chosen field."

HOW IT STARTED
Comedian Young, who has been helping to popularize the bow tie on television, told how he got started on the habit:

Excitement, Suspense, Balanced Acting In Theatre Guild's 'Shop At Sly Corner'

A play that contains excitement, suspense, tragedy and a plentiful dash of humor is the vehicle chosen by the Victoria Theatre Guild for the second show of the season. "The Shop at Sly Corner" opened Monday night and will run for the balance of the week, except Friday, with a final performance on Monday the 18th.

Decius Heiss is a foreigner living in London, a man with a past as well as a present secret. Harold Bellamy plays the role with conviction, greatly enhanced by an excellent make-up and accent. His work is well shaded, attains considerable climax and sincerity and he commands the stage well.

A fine, lively piece of character portrayal is turned in by Frank Lindsay. As the Cockney shop assistant who brings the affairs of Heiss to a drastic denouement, he is, in a word, excellent. His is possibly the best pace in the show. He has good command of vocal and facial innuendo.

Connie Thompson contributes almost all the humor and does it with a real flair. Good, even performances are given by the balance of a capable cast. The play has been ably directed by Barbara Smythe and Alec McGown. A real atmosphere is established as the curtain rises on the cleverly devised set with its suggestion of age and clutter. And if the lighting is a little on the dark side, certainly the mood of the play is sustained.

A selection of recorded music that definitely heightens dramatic moments is the work of Henry Stubbings, who also supplied the high fidelity reproducer used for the purpose.

Generally speaking, this is a show of which the guild can be proud, only requiring a little more "punch" from the actors and a picking up of tempo here and there.
